VICHY NAVY BASES TO AXIS

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 17—Under the terms of the new Franco-German "collaboration" agreement, the Vichy government of France has, it was learned today, agreed to permit German armed forces to use French naval and air bases on the European continent and in Africa.

International News Service is able to reveal exclusively the general terms of the collaboration agreement as they are known in official quarters in Washington.

It was knowledge of these terms which prompted President Roosevelt to order the virtual seizure of 14 French ships in American ports and to condemn vigorously the Vichy government for agreeing to them.

The startling nature of the military and economic concessions granted Germany under the agreement is regarded in authoritative quarters here as placing France definitely in the Axis camp.

In addition to granting Germany the right to use the French naval and air bases, the Vichy government also has agreed to permit French industries in the unoccupied area to start working full blast on orders for Germany. This is seen here as meaning that millions of French workers may soon start turning out war supplies for Germany.

GENEROUS TERMS

In return for these concessions, Hitler is understood to have agreed to give France generous peace terms and to accept that nation as an equal in the establishment of the Axis' new order in Europe. Hitler also has agreed to assist France economically, pending the outcome of the war, and to release a large number of French prisoners of war as well as easing the regulations governing the demarcation lines between the occupied and unoccupied regions.

HOLDS FLEET

The only consolation which the British are likely to find in the new agreement is that under its terms Marshal Henri Petain still refuses to turn over the French fleet and air force to Germany or to engage in actual hostilities against Great Britain.

Furthermore, it was learned that Petain sometime ago issued orders that not one French warship was

NAZIS POUND BIRMINGHAM THREE HOURS

BERLIN, May 17 (AP)—The full weight of Nazi night air raids on England was directed at Birmingham, which was bombed for three hours by more than 100 planes, the Germans said today.

The attack on the important English industrial center was a complete success, they said, and many fires were observed.

Informed quarters said several apartment houses and an "unimportant" industrial plant were damaged by British air raiders last night in western Germany, and a number of civilians were reported injured. One four-motored British bomber was reported shot down near Venloo, on the German-Netherlands border.

Two grounded Spitfires were destroyed by Nazi planes in an attack yesterday on Hawkinge airport in Kent, and trucks were set afire, the Germans said. During the night, they continued, Lympne and St. Eval airports were attacked and hits registered on hangars, shelters, runways and among parked planes.

Berlin Claims Salum Again Lost by British

BERLIN, May 17 (AP) — Axis desert forces in an audacious counter-attack against the British in Salum have recaptured that frontier outpost in Egypt after it had been in British hands for a day, the German high command said today.

The Axis ground forces, supported by warplanes, drove the British eastward from Salum and "all positions previously held again are in the Africa corps hands," the daily communique said.

(The British said yesterday that their gain on the North African front included control of Halfaya Pass, the narow strip between the Mediterranean shore and an inland escarpment southeast of Salum through which runs the road eastward toward Sidi Barrani.)

Two British tanks were said to have been destroyed and 25 men, including three officers, captured at besieged Tobruk, where a British garrison has held out despite the month-old Axis sweep eastward to Salum.

RAF Blasts Syria To Stall Nazi Drive

LONDON, May 17 (AP) — The RAF holds the initial edge in expanding hostilities in the Middle East and intends to use its advantage to destroy Syrian airdromes which the Germans might use as the springboard for a drive to Suez, informed Britons said today.

They predicted sharp intensification of RAF activity in the wake of yesterday's official announcement that German planes had been bombed already at Damascus, Iraqak and Palmyra in the French mandate.

In Africa, on the other side of the Suez Canal, British forces were said to be hammering at Fort Capuzzo, Axis-held bastion just across the Egyptian border in Libya, while other British troops consolidated their hold on Salum, Egypt, and Halfaya Pass.

In East Africa, imperial forces were said to be tightening their grip on Fascist positions held by some 35,000 Italian troops around Amba Alaji, Ethiopia. The Italians, led by the Duke of Aosta, were described as being holed in for a final, desperate stand.

BATTLE RAGES AT IRAQ PORT OF BASRA

VICHY, May 17 (INS)—The second battle of Basra was reported today to be raging around Iraq's only seaport as waves of native troops stormed British positions while RAF planes strafed and bombed Iraqi lines.

An official Bagdad communique, picked up in Vichy, said that British bombers also blasted Mosul, oil field center, and Bagdad, the capital, in two separate attacks on Friday. No damage was done, according to the statement, which also told of counter-blows by Iraqi planes against the beleaguered Habbaniyah airdrome.

Several successive attacks by reinforced Iraqi troops were made against the British at Basra, the port which lies at the top of the Persian Gulf.

Strong Drink Tax In Britain to Pay War Cost 60 Hours

LONDON, May 17 (INS)—Britons, it was estimated today, will drink enough strong spirits this year to yield taxes of $140,000,000—or enough to finance the war for 60 hours.

The same estimates said they will drink enough beer to produce taxes of $588,000,000—or enough to finance the war almost 250 hours.

WEATHER

LOCAL — Increasing cloudiness today and slightly cooler; fair and cooler tomorrow.

New England—Increasing cloudiness today with gentle west winds and cooler; fair and cooler tomorrow.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

Pressures are falling over the Atlantic States and a trough of low pressure extends from northern New England southwestward to Texas. Pressure continues relatively high over Florida and Gulf of Mexico, while it is rising over Minnesota and the upper Mississippi and lower Missouri Valleys. Tropical air now covers most of the Eastern and Southern States, accompanied by scattered thunderstorms in the Ohio Valley and portions of the Middle Atlantic States, but cooler air originating over Canada is pushing southward over the lake region and will displace the warm air in the Ohio Valley and the Middle Atlantic States by Saturday night. Maximum temperatures of 90 degrees or more were reported quite generally Friday afternoon in the Atlantic States from Maryland southward.

$10,000,000 HESS CASH REPORTED BANKED IN VARIOUS COUNTRIES

Nest eggs—or "in case" money—planted in various countries by Rudolph Hess, the ex-No. 3 Nazi, have grown to a total of at least $10,000,000, it was indicated through press dispatches today.

While London was speculating on the question of whether Hess was trying to escape when he quit Germany suddenly on a one-way plane flight, it was revealed that Hess had made deposits of $3,200,000 in the United States.

It was also stated unofficially in London that Hess has got another $3,000,000 or more salted away somewhere in England.

Back in 1939 it was established that the former deputy Fuehrer had $4,007,500 in cash and insurance, about $2,500,000 of which was in Swiss and Dutch currency, and was held through three agents and four banks in Sao Paulo and Basel.

Thus, of the $34,000,000 reported to have been deposited in neutral lands by seven Hitler aides, Hess, with a reported $10,000,000 or more, apparently managed to smuggle by far more than any of his fellow-Nazis.

With Hess in custody and under constant surveillance, the question arises as to how he will be able to collect.

In a story based on detailed documentary evidence by H. R. Knickerbocker, famed International News Service Correspondent, in September, 1939, the following seven Nazis were disclosed as having at least

Quadruplets Born to Wife, 20; Three Die

CHICAGO, May 17 (AP) — Mrs. Frances Adams, 20-year-old wife of a lunchroom chef, gave birth to quadruplets—the second set on record in Chicago—but three of the infants died today less than seven hours after they were born.

The quadruplets, all girls, were born three months prematurely. The first born was weakest and had to be placed in an artificial respirator immediately. The others were placed in incubators.

In the early morning hours all the infants showed signs of weakening and were placed in the respirator in shifts. Frances, the third of the quads, was the first to die. Charlene, the fourth born, and Margaret, the first, died within five minutes of Frances.

Physicians said the surviving infant, Marie, was doing as well as could be expected. Mrs. Adams' condition was described as "good." The children were her first.

The young mother gave birth to the quadruplets less than a half-hour after her arrival at Mercy Hospital last night. None of the infants weighed more than a pound and a half.

Wrapped in a blanket and carried in the arms of a husky taxicab driver, Mrs. Adams arrived at the hospital at 8:05 p. m. The first baby was born at 8:26, the second at 8:28, the third at 8:30 and the fourth a minute later.

Edward Adams, 22, the father, was at work when a hospital attendant telephoned the news.

"No kidding?" was the only response. Then he dashed to the hospital.

"I feel weak," Adams gasped on his arrival.

SALUTE

American Day Exhibition to Draw 50,000

AMERICANS ALL—Students of the Western Junior High School in West Somerville go through their daily flag-raising ceremonies in the school's gymnasium . . . under the direction of Headmaster George Coyne. They'll participate in "I Am an American" Day ceremonies.

Boston's picturesque Hatch Shell truly will be a melting pot Sunday afternoon when Americans from all walks of life, native and adopted, turn out some 50,000 strong for "I Am An American Day."

Expected to be the greatest demonstration of patriotism in Boston's history, the program will start at 2:30 p. m.

While city, state and federal officials and other spectators rededicate themselves to the principles of Americanism, none will be more proud than one of the headline performers—Dr. Serge Koussevitsky.

As an expression of gratitude for his newly acquired citizenship, the celebrated conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra is bringing his full orchestra to the Esplanade for the occasion.

There will be patriotic addresses by officials of city, state and nation, music and song by organizations and individuals, community singing, a pledge of allegiance, a tableau and the massing of the Colors.

COMPLETE PROGRAM

The complete program follows:

Invocation.

Boston Firemen's Band.

Community singing of "America," led by George L. Dwyer Ensemble, conducted by William E. Weston.

Pledge of Allegiance, Boy Scouts of America—Jamaica Plain Troop, No. 1.

Address—Gov. Saltonstall.

Solo — City Councilor John Wickes.

Address—Mayor Tobin.

BARRED IN HUB; TEARFUL SALLY RAND TO PLEAD FAN CASE WITH OBJECTOR

Boston has seen too much of blonde, fan-twirling Sally Rand—or has it?

There seemed two sides to the debate today but the one who was upholding the affirmative on the question was Miss Mary Driscoll, chairman of the Boston Licensing Board, and a most firm woman once she makes up her mind.

Slipping unnoticed into the Latin Quarter, where Sally has been doing something to pack in the customers, Miss Driscoll said the fan-waver and one-time bubble queen stepped onto the floor in a white evening gown and her usual fans.

But a moment later, something had happened to the dress, the license board head declared. And there was Sally with her fans and no dress at all.

TEARFUL MISS RAND

Now the negative of the question was upheld by a most tearful Miss Rand who set out today to find out at a conference with Miss Driscoll just what the Boston rules on dancers really are.

Miss Rand insisted that she wore form-fitting garments on the evening in question but that Miss Driscoll probably is a little nearsighted and didn't realize they are attached with paste and practically invisible.

However, Miss Driscoll has banned Sally from all Boston night clubs and hotel performances. She even refused to let the dance queen appear in regular street dress and just talk a bit to her customers. It seems there also were objections over some of the stories Sally tells—three of them in particular which Miss Driscoll termed "objectionable."

Sally heard the sad news and broke into tears for the photographers.

"WHAT HAVE I DONE?"

"What have I done that I didn't do always," she wept. "I have appeared in Boston four times before and it was all right then."

Then Sally begged photographers not to photograph her in her usual scanties and just to make things different she dressed all up in a nice evening gown with furs, flowers and her dog for her latest picture.

Meanwhile, the debate on whether or not Boston has seen too much of Sally Rand continued warmly, with a few of the gay blades that haunt the rialto coming right out in favor of Sally.

Back Bay Man Killed In Fall Off Roof

An accidental tumble while making repairs on the roof of his apartment house was seen today as the cause of the death of John D. Macdonald, 62, real estate dealer, of Hemmenway st., Back Bay.

Macdonald, police reported, was working at the edge of the roof, 60 feet above the street, when he lost his balance and fell.

Girl Singer Wounded As Guns Blaze Here

An 18-year-old girl night club singer was wounded twice and scores of other persons endangered early today when a gun battle broke out at Washington and Boylston sts., in the heart of the theatrical district.

At least a dozen shots were fired in the few minutes before police arrived to take a Revere man into custody. Two guns were recovered by officers.

Streets and buildings at the busy intersection were sprayed by bullets. Two slugs pierced the right leg of Miss Beatrice Block of the Bronx, N. Y., entertainer in a downtown cafe, as she was running to a doorway for shelter.

Police today questioned two men with police records who were at the scene of the shooting in an attempt to locate a companion who is alleged to have fired the shots.

They are now being held at Station 4 for further interrogation, while Miss Block is in City Hospital followin gan operation for bullet wounds in the lower right leg.

CROWD IN PANIC

A throng of late theatergoers, stopping at restaurants in the vicinity for early morning breakfasts, was thrown into a panic by the gunfire. Another spectator suffered a head injury during the excitement.

Police said the fight apparently developed among members of a group of men who had been seen arguing in a cafe a few minutes earlier. As they reached the street, several of the men started shouting, then shots suddenly rang out.

Miss Block was rushed to the hospital in a taxicab and held for treatment. She said she was walking to her hotel when the battle began.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Also taken to the hospital, for treatment of a head injury, was Michael Saggese, 47, of White st., East Boston. He was given first aid and released.

Patrolman Owen O'Rourke of the Warren ave. station, among the first officers at the scene, seized a 25-year-old Revere man at gunpoint.

O'Rourke said the man was swinging his arms and apparently striking blindly at his assailant, who ran as the officer approached. A revolver, containing six empty shells, was found on the Revere man's person, police reported.

The fleeing man was spotted by Patrolman Joseph Bailey of the Milk st. station, but was lost near the corner of Boylston and Tremont sts.

FIND REVOLVER

In their search for the man who escaped, officers found a nickel-plated revolver, dropped in Head pl., an alley off Boylston st. Sergt. Francis J. Hennessy of the Milk st. station found five discharged shells in the gun.

Both guns were turned over to Sergt. Edward J. Seibold for ballistics tests later in the day. Investigators dug one bullet from the center of Boylston st. and located another in a subway sign on Washington st.

Capt. James J. Hinchey, head of the headquarters homicide squad, questioned Miss Block and the Revere man. The man gave several names and addresses, all false, police said, and was unable to tell a coherent story.

Bushnell Aid Spurs Hunt for Missing Dowd

Boston and state police today had strong backing of Atty. Gen. Robert Bushnell in the long but still unsuccessful search for John F. Dowd, the former sheriff of Suffolk County.

In promising that Dowd can and will be found, Bushnell said he had complete confidence in the work being done by the two departments.

It was added that State Detective Joseph L. Ferrari now had been placed in charge of the hunt for the fugitive, who has been indicted on 60 charges and for whom the state has offered $2500 reward.

"This man," Bushnell declared, "eventually will be apprehended and the systematic search will be continued until he is. Apprehension of a fugitive is a police job and we are simply giving the police such help as we can. I am satisfied that the police are doing everything humanly possible to complete it. This goes for both the State and Boston police.

"Ferrari and other State detectives are on the job day and night and there are plenty of men on the Boston force who would turn this fugitive up immediately now they know their efforts will not be blocked by political influence. The police cannot perform miracles and this is a large continent with many hiding places.

"Meanwhile, Dowd reminds me of the 'Emperor Jones.' It cannot be a pleasant existence, for he has the certain knowledge that wherever he is there will eventually be a slip in the most carefully laid plans and the law will take its course."

Bakers to Open Convention

The New England Bakers' Ass'n will open its annual convention at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, tomorrow night and on Monday night will select Miss Energy.

Five girls selected from a group of 65 at the group's meeting last fall will compete for the title, and the winner will be a candidate for the title, "Miss Energy of America" at the national conclave here in the fall.

The annual banquet and dance Tuesday night will be highlighted by the address of Gov. Saltonstall. L. J. Schumaker, head of the American Bakers' Ass'n, will lead the business session Monday.

MRS. PHOEBE HEARST PAID HONOR BY PARENT-TEACHERS

Setting the stage for the convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers at Hotel Statler, vanguard delegates today paid tribute to Mrs. Phoebe Hearst.

Mrs. Hearst, mother of William Randolph Hearst, was a co-founder of the Congress of Mothers, which later became the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

She founded the Congress of Mothers with Mrs. Alice Birney when both noted philanthropists were living in Washington. Their objectives was to improve home conditions and further the welfare of children.

At Hotel Statler where the convention will be held from Sunday through Thursday next week, Mrs. William Kletzer of Portland, Ore., welcomed members of executive and board committees here to prepare plans for the welcoming of some 3000 delegates from all over the country.

Mrs. Kletzer, who has had 15 years experience in Parent-Teacher work, was elected president of the national organization at the 1940 convention.

In an interview she pictured America as grasping a new conception of its free press, democratic institutions and the place of schools in community health and training programs. She stressed particularly the duty of schools in training apprentices for industry and business.

"America," she said, "has great faith in its philosophy of democracy, but has taken too much for granted. It is now evaluating in different terms. I have never known a country so conscious of its freedom of the press as America is now.

"The nation never considered democracy so seriously before, and during the convention we expect to develop reaffirmation of these ideals."

Pet Seal Yarn Moves Judge, Car Driver Freed

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17 (AP)—Hailed before Municipal Judge Herbert Kaufman on a charge of driving through a stop signal, Phillip Schmidt said:

"My pet seal, Oscar, was in his crate in the back of my truck. Suddenly he broke loose and began smothering me with his flippers.

"It got me so excited I just drove through the signal without knowing it."

"O. K.," said Judge Kaufman, "that's the best excuse yet. Case dismissed."

Defense Show Brings War Close to Hub

War, all its possibilities and horrors, were impressed on the minds of Bostonians today after 98 first graduates of the Women's Civilian Defense School had demonstrated their duties should war come to American cities.

On the baseball field on the Common, 32 of the defense school volunteers, all gas - mask - clad, dashed across the smoke-filled area to "rescue" 20 other girls theoretically overcome by gas.

The smoke was set up by smoke pots and smoke candles furnished by Camp Edwards soldiers.

In another phase of the exhibition, six crews of girls put out oily rag flares which represented incendiary bombs. They used stirrup pumps just brought here from England.

The demonstration ended with a stretcher drill, supervised by Mrs. Pat Beauchamp Washington, who came here recently from England.

CO. F TO HOLD DANCE

The first annual dance and assembly of Company F of the 26th Regiment, Massachusetts State Guard, will be held next Friday at the South Armory, Irvington st.

2 Youths, Blonde Sought In Slaying Aged Woman

Two youths and a 24-year-old blonde girl were being sought today by Boston police for questioning in the murder of Jane Carlton, 75, proprietor of a lodging house in Wigglesworth st., Roxbury.

All, according to police, were known to the elderly woman and one of the youths and the girl were allegedly befriended by Miss Carlton. The second youth, police said, served six months in the House of Correction for robbing her of $65 in March, 1940.

Martin Mulvey, 49, a lodger, who found the woman dead in the front room of her home, told them, police said, that a 27-year-old man who was sentenced for robbing Miss Carlton reportedly paid her a visit this week.

REVENGE MOTIVE

A possible revenge motive was placed on this by police, who said that Mulvey told them Miss Carlton herself had informed him of the man's visit to her lodging house.

Police described the young woman as about 24-years-old, attractive and with blonde hair. They said she frequently was seen at the lodging house during the day when the lodgers were at work.

She sometimes was accompanied by a swarthy man who used a cane. Her connection with the dead woman had not been determined by them, police reported.

The second youth was described by officers as 21 years old and a former inmate of an orphanage, who had been befriended by the victim.

$120 MISSING

Pending an autopsy, police expressed belief she had been criminally assaulted.

The murderer was believed to have taken $126 which the elderly spinster was known to have had for payment of taxes and water bills on her property.

Almost nude, the body was lying on the floor, where she apparently had been thrown after a struggle.

It was tentatively determined by Medical Examiner Timothy Leary that a head injury caused her death. Drops of blood were traced to a stairway leading from the first to second floors.

None of the lodgers had heard unusual sounds, but Harry Edwards, 56, told police that Miss Carlson had told him last Sunday that she entrusted $80 to the young man she had reared and that he vanished with it.

She had given it to him to pay the water taxes, officers quoted Edwards as saying.

Ex-School Official Is Indicted In Lawrence Job Sales Probe

With a former Lawrence school committeeman suddenly indicted by an Essex County grand jury at Newburyport, Atty.-Gen. Robert T. Bushnell's probe of Lawrence's city affairs today appeared headed for a sensational climax.

Even before the grand jury had heard the last witnesses in the probe, two secret indictments were returned against Joseph P. Thornton, 37, former Notre Dame football player and Lawrence school committeeman from 1931 to 1937.

The jury, probing alleged widespread job-selling and relief exploitation in Lawrence, is expected to make its report on Monday after several other Lawrence officials appear at proceedings in Newburyport.

It was indicated that Thornton's arrest is only one of several expected to follow swiftly, for P. M. Hamilton, jury foreman, explained to Judge Felix Forte in Superior Court at Newburyport that the two indictments were but a partial report.

Taken into custody at his Farley st., Lawrence, home by State Police, Thornton was jailed for several hours before a relative finally posted the $5000 bonds required.

Asst. Atty.-Gen. Frank G. Volpe, assigned by Atty.-Gen. Bushnell to conduct the Lawrence probe, meanwhile indicated there was a strong possibility that hearings will be held at Lawrence instead of at Newburyport, as originally requested by defense counsel.

SOLDIERS USE AUTO PARKS, EVADE CAMP'S NO-CAR RULE

Puzzled Army officers at Camp Edwards today were trying to decide what can be done to bring about full observance of an Army regulation designed to prevent soldiers from keeping private cars.

Enterprising land owners near the camp have converted their yards into parking lots and thus have intensified the problem for the Army, officers said.

Lieut.-Col. Paul Murray, camp commander, explained that the rule prevents enlisted men from keeping private cars on the reservation, but that the soldiers are circumventing the rule by parking them in handy lots just off camp limits.

The Army is legally powerless to act against the land owners, who are realizing substantial profits in the enterprise, according to Army officers, who have counted as many as 200 cars parked in one lot near route 28.

"We'd like the men to recognize the spirit of the rule as well as the letter," stated Col. Murray. "Those men are in the Army now and they can't burn the candle at both ends, rising early in the morning and expecting to dash to Boston or other places on a night out of camp."

Other officers said several serious early morning crackups involving the deaths and injuries to some soldiers were attributed to man falling asleep at the wheel as they sped back to camp from a night junket.

At Fort Devens, some 16,000 soldiers were staging a parade and review, but it was not open to the public.

It was described as a dress rehearsal for a review to be held next Saturday in celebration of Cantigny Day, to which the public is invited.

Looper, Thought Shot, Is Sought

Police today sought a youthful looper, thought to be wounded, who escaped in a stolen automobile chase from Thompson sq., Charlestown, to Chelsea.

Patrolman John D. McArthur of Chelsea succeeded in halting the machine on Summer st., Chelsea, after firing four shots and flattening a tire.

McArthur, who chased the machine more than two miles on the side of a commandeered auto, reported firing another shot at the youth as he fled up an alley after abandoning the stolen machine. He said he believed the shot hit the youth in the left arm.

ALDERMAN ADMITS $84,000 THEFT PLOT; 2 OTHERS HELD

PUTNAM, Ct., May 17—After confessing their part in a fantastic plot to rob the Cargill Trust Co. of $84,000, Ralph C. Brearley, local alderman, and Walter Krzemien of Hartford, today were in jail to await trial on May 27.

Arraigned before Judge Edward J. Quinlan in superior court the two men pleaded guilty to charges of conspiring to commit burglary, while a third defendant, former State Policeman George Martin, entered a plea of innocent.

During arraignment state troopers guarded courtroom exits, while throngs watched proceedings.

PLEADS GUILTY

Brearley and Krzemien were charged jointly with conspiring to commit burglary and then Brearley and Martin were arraigned on three counts of conspiracy to obtain money under false pretenses.

Brearley pleaded guilty to all charges.

Martin pleaded innocent and chose trial by jury.

All three men were returned to their cells in lieu of bail. A bond of $10,000 was set for Brearley and $7500 for Martin and Krzemien.

The wives of Martin and Brearley were both in the courtroom but remained calm throughout. Brearley's head was bowed.

The three men were arrested early Monday after a fantastic, fiction-like plot to rob the Cargill Trust Co., where $84,000 was said to have been held in its vaults, was revealed to authorities. The alleged burglars were tricked into employing State Policeman Donald Mackenzie of Hartford as a safebreaker.

LEARN OF PLOT

Police had been informed of the plot by Thomas J. Smith of Hartford, who had been invited to join the gang.

Smith and Mackenzie were to help in the actual robbery. Krzemien was arrested in the alleyway near the bank by troopers who surrounded the building. Brearley was arrested shortly afterward at his home.

Police said Martin, a radio dispatcher of 12 years service, was arrested late Sunday night, just as he was coming on duty, several hours before the time set for the bank cracking.

Brearley operates a hardware store and is a member of Putnam's police commission.

Two Youths, 18, Held in Breaks

After pleading not guilty to charges of breaking and entering and larceny, two 18-year-old youths, allegedly members of a gang of young bandits known as "The Fireflies," were held in $10,000 bail each and ordered to trial May 23 after an appearance before Chief Justice F. Delano Putnam of Central Municipal Court.

A third member of the gang was sent to Shirley school last week in Juvenile court and police are searching for still another youth in connection with a series of recent breaks.

James White, 18, of Derby pl., Roxbury, a parolee from Shirley school, was charged with breaking into a store in Dover st., and stealing $218 worth of leather goods.

Vaughn McNamara, 18, of Compton st., South End, brought to court from Calais, Me., by South End police was charged with three breaks in a Back Bay night spot, and a downtown restaurant and beauty shop.

Jailed Parolee Fails to Aid 2

Sent back to prison for 15 to 18 years on his plea of guilty to holdup charges, Allen G. Locke, 32, of Mystic ave., Charlestown, a State Prison parolee, was unsuccessful in Suffolk Superior Court in exonerating two alleged accomplices. Prosecution of both was ordered continued.

The two men are John J. Kerns, 27, of Walnut ave., Somerville, and John W. Saul, 30, of Mystic ave., Charlestown. Kerns pleaded not guilty to charges of robbery and Saul entered the same plea to charges of carrying a weapon, burglary and armed robbery.

Police charged the two men were Locke's accomplices in a $120 Chelsea liquor store holdup and also in a holdup in which a Cambridge couple were bound and gagged in their home and robbed of $520 in cash and jewelry.

Soldier Is Witness In N. Y. Murder Case

FORT DEVENS, May 17—Pvt. George Zares, a soldier at this camp, today was scheduled to return to New York with officers as a witness in the Harry Vance Maxwell murder case.

Investigators announced he is wanted only as a witness in the slaying of the wealthy New York advertising firm executive. It was indicated he was personally acquainted with the three men now charged with the murder.

Milk Hearing Goes On Amid Protests

Amid protests by Cape milk producers against proposals to include the Cape as part of the Boston milk marketing area, hearings on proposed amendments to federal milk regulations were resumed today at Hotel Bradford.

Among witnesses protesting was William McIntire of Bridgewater, who cited high wages and high grain costs as reasons why the Cape should not be included.

Jeweleer Pays Up In Watch Theft

On making restitution of $15, Harry A. Long, Newbury st. jewelry store proprietor, had his case placed on file when found guilty before Chief Justice F. Delano Putnam in municipal court of stealing a watch from a Back Bay widow.

The woman, Mrs. Louis Cobrain, of Newbury st., testified that her husband left the watch at the jeweler's shop last fall and died a short time later. When she went to claim it, she said, a cheaper watch was offered her, instead.

21 Republics Ready To Seize Colonies

WASHINGTON, May 17 (AP)—The 21 American republics today prepared to establish "provisional administration" over French colonies in the Americas, it was learned authoritatively, if the forecast close "collaboration" between Germany and France should be projected into the Western Hemisphere.

Any decisive action, however, will be delayed, it was said, pending clarification of the degree of the Vichy government's co-operation in setting up the Nazis' "new order" in Europe.

HALIFAX, HULL TALK

Viscount Halifax, the British ambassador, conferred late yesterday with Secretary Hull on new developments in the international situation arising from the Nazi-Vichy pact, including mention of the future status of French possessions in this hemisphere.

Arrangements for establishing provisional administrations for Dutch possessions in the Western hemisphere if their status were threatened by developments in the war were agreed upon at the inter-American conference in Havana.

That conference adopted a resolution which proclaimed that "the American republics would regard any transfer, or attempted transfer, of sovereignty, jurisdiction, possession or other interest in or control over any such region (in this continent) to another non-American state as inimical to their peace, safety and political independence.

PROVISIONAL PLAN

To carry out that pronouncement the Havana conference designated an inter-American committee empowered to establish temporary administration over European colonies—to end when normal conditions were restored.

European colonies which would fall in the category, it was said, include:

French — Martinique, French Guiana, Gaudaloupe, St. Pierre and Miquelon, and Clipperton Island.

British — Bermuda, Bahamas, Jamaica, Leeward Islands, Windward Island, Barbadoes, Trinidad, British Honduras and British Guiana.

Dutch Guiana and Curacao.

$34,000,000 salted away in neutral lands:

Hess, Feild Marshal Herman Goering, Dr. Joseph Goebbels, Col. Joachim von Ribbentrop, Nazi foreign minister; Dr. Robert Ley, head of Nazi labor front; Heinrich Himmler, chief of Nazi secret police, and Julius Streicher, chief "Jew baiter."

The interpretation at the time was that Hitler's lieutenants by depositing large fortunes abroad were prepared for war or revolution at home.

Then von Ribbentrop was listed as having the largest deposits with $9,740,000 in cash and insurance, of which more than $3,000,000 was represented in cash at banks at Haarleb, The Hague and at Zurich.

South American, Japanese, Luxembourg, Swiss, Dutch, Egyptian, Estonian, Latvian and Finnish banks were declared the depositories for the Nazi fortunes.

Just how much is held in the United States by Nazi friends is unknown.

Recently, it was reported, there has been an organized effort to repatriate some of the bonds held by the Nazis.

Girl Beaten in Alley Young Pugilist Held

A young amateur boxer was held by police today on a charge of suspicion of assault and battery after Miss Hyla Carpenter, 20, of Morse Hill rd., Jamaica Plain, a night club entertainer, was beaten in an alley off Carver st.

The boxer was captured by John L. Gallagher, 26, of Carver st., who heard the girl's screams and came to her rescue. He held the youth until police arrived. The young woman's clothing was torn and her face cut and bruised and she was taken to City Hospital for treatment.

Slavs to Get Planes, Son Jim Tells Boy King

JERUSALEM, May 17 (INS)—Capt. James Roosevelt, United States military observer and son of the American President, arrived in Jerusalem today after an audience with boy-King Peter of Yugoslavia "somewhere in the Middle East."

It was understood King Peter asked Roosevelt whether the United States would supply aircraft to rebuild the Yugoslavian air force. The latter was said to have replied:

"As many as Your Majesty desires."

British Shift of 2 Generals Kept Secret

LONDON, May 17 (AP)—Two of Britain's top-ranking soldiers—Lieut.-Gen. Sir Robert H. Haining, vice chief of the Imperial General Staff, and Major General H. C. B. Wemyss, who is adjutant general to the forces—have been selected for special appointments but a war office announcement gave no intimation of what their new duties might be.

ON TWO FRONTS—British forces take the offensive aground and in the skies as they storm and retake Salum (1) in Egypt along with Halfaya pass, indicating the launching of a second drive into Libya (2) . . . while German planes were bombed in French-mandated Syria (3), through which Nazi legions were reported moving toward Iraq (4). Meanwhile, all the eastern Mediterranean except Turkey's territorial waters (5) were declared by the British to be dangerous to shipping.

HITLER GETS FRENCH NAVY, AIR BASES

to move from its dock or anchorage without specific authorization from him. Not even Admiral Francois Darlan, the vice-premier, can order a single warship to move without the aged Marshal's approval.

However, informed quarters here fear that despite Petain's orders, Germany will succeed in getting control of the French fleet before many weeks have passed. This fear is based on the conviction that Petain's authority in Vichy is about to disappear under the new collaboration agreement. Admiral Darlan is now seen as sitting in the saddle with Petain about to become the Hindenburg of France.

DISMEMBER NATION

American officials are reluctant to condemn the Marshall himself for what is happening. Vichy advices indicate the hero of Verdun held out just about as long as he could against both Hitler's demands and the pressure of those around him, especially Darlan, who favored the policy of close collaboration.

Hitler is understood to have informed Darlan at their recent meeting that this was the last chance he intended to give France. Either Petain must agree to the collaboration terms, or the German army would occupy all of France and the nation would be dismembered in the final peace settlement imposed by the Axis.

Simultaneously, resentment mounted in Vichy over the action of the United States government in placing guards aboard the French liner Normandie and 12 other French ships in American ports.

Official French quarters, however, remained silent on this point.

Informed Vichy circles claimed France has no alternative save co-operation with the German-sponsored "new European order." But they declared France is moving into "economic and political collaboratoon—not military" with the Reich.

They denied France is delivering her colonies or naval fleet over to the Axis powers.

SOUGHT BEST TERMS

That Petain was able to hold out for retention of the fleet and air force was considered in authoritative quarters here to be worthy of considerable respect. The Marshal was seen as an old French peasant whose horse, in the form of France, was about to be taken away from him by force unless he agreed to use it as demanded, and he was trying to get the best terms possible.

Now that the deal has been concluded, however, it is feared the Germans will persuade Darlan to act without Petain's knowledge in removing those dissident elements in the French fleet who might revolt at any future attempt to use the navy in the interests of the Axis cause.

A needling process is considered likely not only in relation to the Navy but also in regard to control of the important air bases of France and its African possessions. When this process has progressed sufficiently to enable the Germans to take over virtual control of the bases, it is believed here they will start operating from them.

JOINT ACTION

While the potentialities of German control of the French naval and air bases, especially in Africa, are viewed with grave concern by this government, American officials do not believe there is immediate danger of German use of the French West African port of Dakar as a base of operations.

The situation, it was pointed out, may, of course, change from day to day, but at present there are no indications of German activities in Dakar. Furthermore, there is a strong French naval force stationed there and it is believed it will take a little time yet before the anticipated German needling process gets under way in that port.

The moment it does appear that the Germans are about to establish themselves there, the United States and Great Britain will, it was said, act quickly.

French Astounded At U. S. Attitude

VICHY, France, May 17 (AP)—High French sources regarded with "astonished" concern today what they described as "semi-official declarations" in the United States indicating that occupation of French Guiana and Martinique is under consideration.

Circles close to the French government interpreted the attitude in the United States toward France's colonies as resulting from a misunderstanding of French collaboration with the Reich.

Britain's moves also were watched closely after an official statement acknowledging yesterday for the first time the British bombing of air fields in Syria. The French declared, however, they would not regard the bombings as aggression.

A semi-official statement expressing astonishment at American interpretation of the status of French colonies inquired also about the "taking over of the Normandie and other French merchant ships by armed American guards."

Frenchmen close to chief of State Philippe Petain's administration expressed the greatest surprise that President Roosevelt apparently interpreted Petain's talk of collaboration "as putting French colonies at the disposal of Germany."

One semi-official statement gave this as France's position:

"In May, 1940, when France had been abandoned by England, America didn't think it her duty to reply to her (France's) appeal.

"Today, France, careful of guarding her position as a great power and the integrity of her territory as an empire, has definitely the right to consider with the conqueror the conditions of common reorganization of the continent of Europe.

"That in no way signifies she has the intention of attacking England—even less the United States.

"The menaces of Mr. Eden (British Foreign Secretary) against Syria and the bombardment of Syrian airdromes have just been added to the things which France still refuses to consider as the Anglo-Saxon will for aggression."

The French said they were entering into collaboration willingly, under no Nazi pressure—and declared that the collaboration was political and economic.

U. S. to Train British Fliers by Thousands

WASHINGTON, May 17 (AP)—A high War Department official today disclosed final approval of plans to train several thousand British pilots a year in the United States.

The first group will begin receiving instruction next month, he said, in civilian flying schools under Army contract and in advanced training centers of the United States Army.

In addition, the program provides that the British will open some civilian schools of their own here with the United States furnishing planes and equipment and Britain paying the instructors.

The student fliers will come here as civilians rather than as members of the Royal Air Force, sidestepping possible international complications which might arise from training foreign military pilots in a legally neutral country.

RELIEVES BRITISH

American training of British fliers is expected not only to relieve the British of this work but to clear their airfields for purely military operations.

Some Britons selected to ferry bombers across the Atlantic already have been sent here to receive special instruction in handling those ships. Such training, however, has been given only to a comparatively small number of men.

An official said that the actual number to be given flying instruction could not yet be fixed, and he did not state the size of the initial group which is scheduled to start work in the first half of June. However, he said it was certain that in a short time the rate of trained pilots turned out would be "several thousand a year."

As outlined by this official the program falls into two categories:

1—The British are arranging for several civilian flying schools to give primary and basic flier training. The Army will furnish the equipment for these schools under the lease-lend act and the British will pay for personal services such as the time of instructors.

2—The Army will make available a portion of its expanding facilities including private flying schools under Army contract and also Army advanced traning schools.

ADVANCED TRAINING

Advanced training will be given the Britons at Maxwell Field, Alabama; Moffett Field, California; and Randolph Field, Texas.

While Army authorities did not say where the British schools would be established, it was understood in other quarters that a total of six schools would be organized in the following states: California, Florida, Texas, Oklahoma and Georgia. Exact locations were not known.

BRITISH DOUBT HESS, SEEK TO SOLVE RIDDLE

By EARL REEVES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, May 17 (INS)—Amid growing suspicion that Chancellor Hitler knew all about Rudolf Hess' fantastic "escape" from Germany to Britain, Prime Minister Winston Churchill's government redoubled its efforts today to find the answer to the "Hess riddle."

According to the London Daily Mail, the Royal Air Force has "lent" the Duke of Hamilton, an air commodore, to the ministry of information to aid in the investigation.

Until the mystery of Hess' flight to Scotland is cleared up, it was said, the Duke will assist both the information ministry and the foreign office in examining Hess and probing all circumstances of his adventurous trip from Germany. The Duke, whom Hess originallly intended to see, already has talked with the former No. 3 Nazi leader a number of times.

"ESCAPE" DOUBTED

Meanwhile, many London circles became increasingly convinced that Hess' strange airplane flight from Augsberg to Scotland was not the "escape" it was at first represented to be.

This belief was encouraged by an official British radio broadcast which revealed the plane Hess flew to Scotland and then wrecked when he parachuted to earth, was one of the Reich's most modern long-range reconnaissance machines. The plane was described as a model not yet put into general use by the Luftwaffe.

As a result, many observers in London were of the opinion that Hess could not have obtained the craft without the knowledge of the highest German authorities, and therefore his bold undertaking was known and approved in advance by the German government.

CLOSEST SCRUTINY

Technical interest at once centered on the plane and it was announced officially that contrary to earlier plans the wreckage will not be displayed in Trafalgar sq. in connection with London's "war weapons week."

Instead, what remains of the craft undoubtedly will be subjected to the closest scrutiny by British aviation experts.

It was learned that Churchill and other officials already have received a full report of the information so far given by Hess

Cologne Target of RAF, Big Fires Light Up Rhine

LONDON, May 17 (AP)—RAF bombers concentrated a sharp attack last night on the Rhineland industrial city of Cologne and also blasted docks at Boulogne on the German-occupied French coast, the British reported today.

At the same time the Luftwaffe gave England her heaviest air raid of the week, striking mainly at the Midlands and dropping bombs on other widely-separated areas.

During the attack on Cologne, the British declared, large fires were started in manufacturing areas on both sides of the Rhine. The raid followed up a series of daylight forays by the RAF during which a number of vessels were reported attacked off the Norwegian coast and one 25000-ton supply ship was sunk.

Although the Nazi raid was the first extensive attack on England since the parachute landing of Rudolf Hess a week ago became known, the government said it was not a concentrated, large-scale bombing.

In the Midlands, a communique said, "some damage was done by incendiary and high-explosive bombs and there were a number of casualties." Elsewhere, in southeastern and eastern England, 'little damage and few casualties" were reported.

Some of the casualties were caused in a direct hit on an air raid shelter.

London was under alarm from midnight until just before dawn, and planes were heard overhead, but no bombings were repotred in the city.

Dispatches from Berlin said southern and central England bore the brunt of the attack and that armament and industrial plants in one central English city were bombed heavily.

(The Germans said British raiders damaged several apartment buildings and an "unimportant industrial plant and caused a number of casualties in western Germany.)

Reports from Dover described the British attack on German-held ports across the English channel as heavy and continuing for several hours.

British fighter planes also were said to have turned back a number of Nazi bombers headed for England's southeast coast.

U. S. WAR HERO TURNS BACK FRENCH MEDAL

The French ambassador in Washington today received the diploma and medal of the French Legion of Honor which that nation bestowed 21 years ago on Maj. Judson Hannigan for bravery during the war and fidelity to his former comrades in arms.

Their return came as a protest against "the decision of the French government to collaborate with the Axis" from Hannigan, World War officer of the Yankee Division and former president of the Republican Club of Massachusetts.

"As I see it, this is what the Old Yankee Division is called on to do," Maj. Hannigan said. "It may also be a suggestion to Col. Lindbergh," the major added, apparently referring to medals awarded Lindbergh by the Germans.

'DEEPLY PAINFUL'

In sending his honors back to M. Gaston Henri-Haye, French ambassador in Washington, Maj. Hannigan said:

"My action is deeply painful because the decision of the present French Government to collaborate with the Axis is a shocking disavowal of everything which the Legion of Honor symbolized.

"The France which my dear friend, the late Congressman A. Piatt Andrew served so devotedly, the France of Foch and Francho d'Esperey and Petain the Warrior (not Petain the aged and wobbling vassal) and Jusseraud and legions of other heroic names, has been supplanted by a new France in which Darlan is a symbol and the Axis is master.

"France could have been majestic even in her days of heroic men. Now she is ruled by Hitler puppets. The most foul fiend in history prescribes her destiny and her treachery to her former ally.

"The earthly sepulchre of my former comrades of the American Expeditionary Forces in France now constitutes the stamping ground of Hun hordes drilling to accomplish the destruction of democratic institutions.

'MEN OF STEEL'

"May the eyes of all real Frenchmen rest upon the ossuary at Verdun. It is the shrine of those whom neither shape of danger could dismay, nor thoughts of tender happiness betray.' They were men of steel. They were the men of the true France. They are for the moment forgotten. I pray that their prototypes may live again. In their memory and in their honor I hand you the medal I have treasured and whose meaning I seek to exemplify by being loyal to their ideals."

BOSTON After DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

THE LICENSING AUTHORITIES showed a solid front in the latest l'affaire Sally Rand . . . Mrs. Mary Driscoll let it be known that the Boston Licensing Board was not fooling in insisting that Sally be shooed out of Boston for all time (or while the current board is operative, at least) . . . The Alcoholic Beverages Commission, which does not always go along with decisions of Mrs. Driscoll's board, has taken a similarly firm stand.

THE BOSTON BANNING will stimulate interest in Miss Rand's forthcoming appearance at the Latin Quarter in Old Silver Beach, where she probably will be the opening attraction . . . Sometimes these incidents have a fashion of boomeranging, however, and if the city fathers of Falmouth take it into their collective heads to concur with Mrs. Driscoll, then Miss Rand may find a lucrative engagement gone.

THE BEVERAGES COMMISSION (ABC) has jurisdiction over the Cape Latin Quarter, of course, and that body could make matters a bit uncomfortable for Lou Walters and his associates in case the Latin Quarter boss insisted on showing Miss Rand . . . Investigators for the ABC were among those complaining at the alleged scarcity of coverage afforded by the Rand fans.

HARPO MARX WILL PLAY a leading role in "Yellow Jacket," at a "Marblehead, Maine," summer theater, according to a Hollywood bulletin in Variety . . . This is one of the things about Hollywood which can so easily irk a good down-Easterner—Stirling Hayden, for instance . . . That the town which possesses the country's most beautiful landlocked harbor is in Massachusetts, not Maine, should not need explaining, but in the Hollywood book Marblehead is a town in New England with a 1400 seat house and another playing fifth runs.

THIS SAME ITEM said that Alexander Woollcott "arranged" the deal for Harpo . . . The Woollcott-Harpo Marx mutual devotion is one of the theater's most renowned friendships . . . Few recall how it all started . . . The story of its inception is a unique one in the history of beautiful friendships . . . Woollcott first became friendly with Harpo—and the other Marx Brothers, too, but in a lesser degree—when he was one of New York's most powerful critics, and "discovered" the comedians in a show called "I'll Say She Does" (around 1921).

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Here is the "inside" story of how Joe Louis beat Al McCoy, as told by Johnny Ray, Billy Conn's manager, in a current nickel magazine: "Billy gave Al McCoy such a beating that McCoy was a soft touch for Louis a couple of months later." (No comment) . . . Except that there hasn't been a sell-out fight in Boston since the Louis-McCoy fiasco took place last winter . . . Even such a "natural" as the recent Zivic-Kaplan tussle didn't "go over."

THE RACE-HOSS, SAVANT, which was nosed out of first place the other day at Suffolk, would have paid himself out and given his new owners a two-hundred per cent profit on the sale the very first start . . . Savant was bought for $250 cash and its first winning purse. (These "first purse" deals are common around the racetrack) . . . What made the race a thrilling one, was that Savant went off at 90 to 1 . . . A $20 bet on the nag's nose was what its new owners—a couple of young men from Revere, had running for them.

VAUGHN MONROE IS BEING given an extraordinary publicity blast as he gets ready for his opening at the Paramount Theater Monday . . . "To the big time in one year," is the heading of a story at hand . . . It's a little longer than that . . . Vaughn was playing at the Brunswick in 1936 . . . But his present band was formed recently . . . We hear that his engagement at the Hotel New Yorker is an indefinite one, and is expected to continue until next fall.

NEWSPAPERMEN WILL NOT feel so envious about the rank and file of the brethren who swapped newspaper jobs for cushy assignments in Hollywood . . . It develops now that the average weekly wage for writers in Hollywood is $80 a week.

CADET THOMAS HALL
Gets Commission Soon

Cadet Hall Gets Air Corps Wings May 29

Flying Cadet Thomas William Hall, former public relations officer for the Raynham dog track, returned home today for a 10-day visit with his mother on Park Drive, Back Bay, before completing his final flight training.

Hall, a graduate of the University of Maine, will receive his wings and a commission as a second lieutenant at the Air Corps Advanced Flying School, Maxwell Field, Montgomery, Ala., on May 29.

At that time he will have completed 70 hours of advanced instruction in a low wing monoplane, powered by a 600 horsepower motor, on familiarization flights, individual accuracy, night and time and distance navigation problems.

Hall already has had more than 200 hours dual and solo in primary and basic training planes, in addition to ground school training in military organization, signal communications, code practice, combat orders and squadron duties.

Following his graduation as a flying cadet, Hall will be assigned to extended active duty with the regular Army Air Corps Tactical Squadron.

HEINZ AIDE LAUDS PAPERS AS BEST MEDIUM FOR ADS

PITTSBURGH, May 17 (AP)—Paying a high tribute to newspaper advertising, Franklin Bell, advertising manager of the J. H. Heinz Co., announced the food products firm is launching its biggest fall newspaper advertising schedule.

Bell said enlarged use of the medium was determined by results of a survey of 21 newspapers that proved a consumer buying increase of 33.7 per cent was obtained through application to newspapers of radio technique of sustained continuity and repetition."

"It is our opinion," said Bell, "that newspapers today are in the strongest position with the reading public they have enjoyed in 20 years; that their fundamental advantages or selectivity and flexibility are particularly important in today's merchandising, and that properly used with adequate continuity they should be primary in a thoroughly rounded national advertising program."

The survey, Bell said, was conducted over a 15-month period. It tested the use of newspaper advertising space in cities from coast to coast, each selected for the study of representative of important population groups.

The program was prepared by the city's Bureau of Americanization headed by Frank Flanagan and Leo Walsh in co-operation with scores of patriotic, fraternal and civic groups, with members of the City Council serving on various committees.

Originally scheduled to be held at the Fenway stadium, the demonstration was transferred to the Hatch Shell because of the tremendous response the announcement received.

Dr. Koussevitzky, in announcing he would conduct the full Boston Symphony Orchestra, considered one of the finest in the world, as part of the program, said:

BOSTON DEBT

"This is my contribution of gratitude in recognition of becoming a citizen. I feel that I owe this to Boston and to this country."

Among the features will be an instructive and novel scene depicting the making of a new citizen. Others will show the landing of the Pilgrims, Gen. Washington crossing the Delaware, the Inauguration of President Lincoln, the emancipation of the slaves, surrender of Gen. Lee to Gen. Grant and incidents of the Spanish and World Wars, under the direction of Joseph H. Crossen.

There will also be one of the greatest mass choral demonstrations ever assembled on an outdoor stage under the direction of Miss Helen Gordon, and City Councilor John C. Wickes will sing for the first time to a large audience "Thank God for America."

F. D. American Day Decree Honors New U. S. Citizens

In designating Sunday as "I Am An American Day," President Roosevelt in his proclamation urged "that this day be observed as a public occasion in recognition of our citizens who have attained their majority or who have been naturalized within the past year. And I do call upon all federal, state and local officials, and all patriotic, civil and educational organizations to join in exercises calculated to impress upon all our citizens, both native-born and naturalized, the special significance of citizenship in this nation."

76 Called By State to Death Trial

A total of 76 witnesses have been summoned by the prosecution for the case of Mrs. Ruth Steadman, 28, who goes on trial next Monday in Suffolk Superior Court charged with the murder of Robert Emery, Natick realtor and father of two children.

The trial, expected to be a lengthy one, will see outstanding legal talent arrayed in behalf of both the prosecution and defense.

In the role of chief counsel for the defense, the former Needham girl defendant will have Edward F. Flynn, partner of the late John P. Feeney, with whom he figured in many of New England's outstanding legal tilts.

In Flynn, the prosecution will find an antagonist alert to every government move through his 11 years of experience as a prosecutor himself—as assistant district attorney in Essex County.

As associate defense counsel, Flynn will have Joseph P. Donahue of Lowell, noted trial lawyer. Donahue is a former city solicitor of Lowell and recently has served the city as special counsel.

Opposing them will be Asst. Dist.-Atty. Edward M. Sullivan, colorful and eloquent young government prosecutor. The trial will be presided over by Judge Vincent Brogna.

HUNT SITES FOR OBJECTORS

WILLIAMSTOWN, May 17—The Hopkins Memorial Forest and the abandoned CCC camp on Mt. Greylock today were considered likely sites following reports from Washington that the town had been selected to house conscientious objectors to the draft.

Our New Defense Bases in the West Indies

How these key islands protect our Panama Canal from attack or invasion from the East is told by PROFESSOR SAMUEL E. MORISON of HARVARD who has just visited these bases with the Harvard Columbus expedition.

MOONEY SHIFTED TO N. Y. OFFICE

William Q. Mooney, marketing service manager, Boston division, of the Shell Oil Company, Incorporated, has been named assistant sales service manager in the New York office of that company, Herbert M. Bailey, Boston division manager announced.

Mooney will be succeeded by John K. Evans as marketing service manager at Boston.

J. K. Evans

Mooney has had a varied experienced in the marketing of petroleum products in New England and New York State. He came to Boston as marketing service manager in January, 1940. A native of Fall River, he became associated with Shell in its operations department in metropolitan New York in October, 1929.

In his new position Evans will direct the marketing service department, contacting area managers supervising all of the company's activities in Massachusetts, Maine, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Connecticut and a portion of Vermont. He will be located at the division headquarters at 787 Commonwealth ave., Boston.

Evans joined Shell about nine years ago and has had a wide experience in many of the company's departments. He was marketing service manager at Portland, Me., from April, 1939, to October, 1940, when he was transfered to the company's head office in New York City for a special assignment

DONATES 29-MILLIONTH FORD TO RED CROSS

Members of the Motor Corps of the American Red Cross are shown with Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, in front of the twenty-nine millionth Ford car, which was presented to the organization. The car is a Super De Luxe station wagon.

U. S. Auto Transportation Vital Asset to Defense

"Fortunately for the United States, the present defense emergency finds our system of individual transportation developed to a higher degree than anywhere else in the world," the National Automobile Dealers Association points out in the second study of its series to acquaint the public with the place of the motor car in modern transportation and to offset the misconception that it is still a luxury, the output of which can be restricted without penalizing the American way of living.

"Individual transportation is one arm of our defense that needs no hasty building up or equipping," the study continues.

"It is already here, in magnificent proportions, serving our military and civilian needs.

"America's universal ownership of motor vehicles provides a flexibility to movement of materials and manpower that gives us a big edge on other countries in the armament race. It will be a mighty factor in our effort to accomplish in months what other countries have taken years to do.

"In the United States, we have roughly one motor vehicle for every four persons. Totalitarian Germany has only one to 41 persons. In Italy, the ratio is one to 33; in Russia, one to 213, and Japan, one to 381. None of the great powers [illegible] where near us in [illegible] ship. France is [illegible] to 17 persons. The United Kingdom has one motor vehicle for every 19 persons.

DRAWS FROM WIDE RADIUS

"How vital this fluid form of transportation is to our national defense is being brought into sharp relief by the necessity for mobilizing workers in the great production effort now under way. The private automobile permits a plant to draw its rapidly expanding working force from a wide radius.

"With private transportation playing such a vital part in the speed-up of our defense program, it is important to maintain these facilities at a high level of efficiency. To this end, the National Automobile Dealers Association has launched a mechanics' training program so that adequate service can be provided for the 31,950,000 motor vehicles in use. And to supply the increased demand for new cars, the manufacturers, through apprentice training, are endeavoring to maintain the ranks of their working forces which are being depleted by new armament industries. Every effort is being made to prevent any unnecessary curtailment of automobile output which might entail higher prices, restrict motor vehicle use and impede our national effort to speed production."

TANK FOR UNCLE SAM

CHRYSLER dealers, distributors and their employees chipped in and bought the first M3 medium tank turned out by the Chrysler Corporation as a gift to the United States Army. Presentation ceremonies were attended by a large number of civilian and army leaders. Here are members of the gift committee and Chrysler officials grouped around the gift tank. Standing on the ground, left to right, Whitney Leary, Washington; President David A. Wallace, Harry Somers, Atlanta; Earl B. Wilson, Sales Director; Mark Feder, Cleveland. Left to right, above—Martin T. Moran, Garfield, N. J.; K. B. Brown, Detroit; L. M. Stewart, St. Louis; Arthur H. Jones, Hastings, Nebraska; O. D. Wearley, Toledo; Ernest Dowd, Cleveland; Al DeCozen, Newark; Watler Shirley, Minneapolis and Charles L. Jacobson, vice-president in charge of sales.

300 PACKARD MEN MEET

More than 300 Packard dealers and salesmen from the New England territory were guests of Ex-Gov. Alvan T. Fuller at a dinner in his Packard showroom on Commonwealth Avenue.

Wm. M. Packer, vice-president in charge of distribution of the Packard Motor Car Company, was the chief speaker, he said:

"Public acceptance to this new Clipper has been so responsive it has exceeded all our expectations. Our production has been stepped from 10,000 to 16,000 units."

Lyman W. Slack, assistant sales-manager of Packard, said:

"The Clipper, while styled to offer the ultimate in streamline design, considers the passengers because it gives more comfort, more safety and convenience."

Ex. Gov. Fuller said:

"Never before in my years of association with Packard have I seen such excellent taste of superior design, coupled with the highest standard of mechanical excellence such as Packard has given us in the Clipper and at a price that only a few years ago we would have thought impossible."

NEW PLANS ANNOUNCED BY DODGE

Plans for consolidating the entire Dodge field force and the vast, nation-wide retail selling organization behind a widespread and far-reaching movement to assist business, industry and agriculture in attaining maximum truck transportation efficiency, particularly under current conditions, were announced today by L. D. Cosart, sales manager, truck division, Dodge Brothers Corporation.

The program encompasses advanced training of all representatives in the application of motor trucks that are properly fitted to the jobs they must do in the increasingly important task of hauling the nation's goods and materials.

To initiate the program, two-day conference sessions will be conducted by Cosart, George W. Malcomson, assistant truck sales manager; George A. Orphal, assistant director of truck sales; L. M. Oltman and D. W. Lee, truck sales engineers, and B. B. Settle, assistant director of service.

MEETINGS OVER NATION

Meetings will be held in Detroit, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Greensboro, N. C., Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Oklahoma City, Dallas, Los Angeles, Seattle and Minneapolis.

Objective of the program is to increase the efficiency of the nation-wide Dodge organization in the application of the right trucks for every type of delivery and haulage requirement, according to scientific principles.

"Never before have the motor truck and truck transportation industries been so vitally important to the welfare of the nation," said Mr. Cosart, in discussing the program.

NOW'S THE TIME

"If there ever was a time when this country needed highest efficiency in truck transportation, that time is right now. In our opinion, our dealers and the men in our field organization can best serve the interests of their country by helping truck users to perfect a transportation system in the most mobile country on earth that will command the respect of the entire world.

"To attain topmost efficiency, trucks either in military or commercial service must fit the jobs they are designated to do. The Dodge field forces and far-flung retail organization willingly assumes the added responsibilities of doing everything possible to bring this about."

BATHRICK TO MEET PONTIAC DEALERS IN HUB ON TUESDAY

Don Bathrick, Pontiac general sales manager, will be in Boston next Tuesday for a meeting with Pontiac dealers. This is one of the first of a series of 24 which Bathrick will conduct during the next six weeks.

V. L. Murray, assistant general salesmanager in charge of the Atlantic region, and Charles N. Kane, zone manager, who will have charge of the Boston meeting.

B. B. Kimball D. U. Bathrick

Pontiac people have been showering B. B. Kimball with congratulations as he starts his second quarter century of service with Pontiac. He is believed to hold the record for continuous service as an automobile advertising executive.

"Cap" is unquestionably one of the most popular men in the industry with the newspaper representatives and automobile editors. Just out of West Point he went to work for Pontiac's predecessor, Oakland, in April of 1917. He has seen the ad budget grow from a few dollars to an expenditure of over $3,000,000 annually.

CHAPLIN REVIVALS PACKING 'EM IN AT FINE ARTS AND CIVIC REPERTORY

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S old silent comedy shorts are proving popular with patrons of the Civic Repertory and the Fine Arts theaters.

Old Silent Hits Hold Popularity

Old Charlie Chaplin comedies are coming back with a bang and the fact that they date from the screen's silent days doesn't mean a thing except that the star was then at his best. Most Chaplin admirers, who go to see these shorts just to have their feelings well stirred up, don't miss dialogue. Chaplin's mastery of pantomime commands laughter and tears and certainly in his case actions are more eloquent than words.

Three of the famous old Chaplin shorts, "The Bank," "His Night Out" and "Shanghaied," have been brought back to add still more popularity to the Civic Repertory bill. At this house they share attention with "Pepe le Moko," the French film hit starring Jean Gabin.

Around the corner, at the Fine Arts, is the big "Charlie Chaplin Festival," which includes six classic two-reelers and furnishes two hours of practically uninterrupted hilarity.

In the Fine Arts festival are "The Vagabond," "The Adventurer," "The Immigrant," "Easy Street," "The Count" and "The Cure," giving Chaplin room to spare for his matchless talent as the screen's greatest clown yet.

Society Singer In 'Gay Divorce'

Gynia Gray, society singer in "Gay Divorce," describes herself as tall, slender, gray-eyed and having "dirty blonde" hair. Educated in California and at a convent in Paris, she divided last summer between a singing engagement in Rio de Janeiro and playing the Maine strawhat circuit. She is one of the prettiest members of the cast in the Shubert Theater musical revival.

Tops Olympia Bill

"Road to Zanzibar," an extremely funny burlesque of musical films with Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and Dorothy Lamour, tops the Washington st., Olympia screen bill through Friday. The co-feature is "Dead Men Tell," with Sidney Toler and Jean Rogers.

Gay Hinda Wassau Returns As Old Howard Headliner

Tantalizing Hinda Wassau returns to the Old Howard on Monday, and the advance word is that she now entertains and dances better than ever and as always is at her best during her TNT numbers.

Supporting this blonde beauty are that dependable comic threesome, Fred Binder, Jack Rosen and Jack Diamond, with a flock of new gags and funny scenes entirely new to Hub audiences, who are definitely partial to them.

Outstanding in the charm parade will be Winnie Garrett, Maizie White, Pat Patterson, Ethel Deveaux, Dolores DeVere and 30 prettty song-and-dance girls. The Wilberts are dancing stars, who come here direct from an extended run at Leon and Eddie's. Another featured act will be the Two Saxons, a Ringling Bros. novelty team.

There are three shows daily at the Old Howard, starting at 12 noon, 2:45 and 8 p. m. The weekly midnight show starts at 11:30.

HINDA WASSAU

Globe Fans Laud Betty Rowland

Betty Rowland, featured charmer in the Bing Crosby film, "Say It With Music," appears to be expressing "It" for the Globe customers with no dissenting voices.

Other pretenders to glamour in the cast are Dolores Dawn, Margie Roye, Mimi Reed and Grace Raye as well as the indispensable Globe chorus, the 30 dancing Bernardolls.

Mandy Kay, in his second hilarious week, is aided in the fun department by Harry "Shuffles" Van, Harry Ryan and Irving Benson.

Lavish French Revue Opens On Boston's Stage Monday

The RKO Boston management is excited about the new stage revue, "La Vie Paree," described as a typically French revue and due for a three-day engegement beginning Monday.

Two first-run attractions make up the screen half of the program . . . "Emergency Landing," with Evelyn Brent, and "Pirates on Horseback," starring William Boyd.

"La Vie Paree," combining everything from slapstick to gorgeously staged ensembles, international artists and knockabout comedians, glamour girls and eccentric dancers, is a most lavish production.

The ensembles include "The Human Fountain of Versailles," "The Jungle Flower Dance," "The Silver Vision" and "Cocktail Rendezcous."

"HOLLYWOOD TODAY," by Louella O. Parsons, noted filmland authority, appears regularly in the Boston Evening American.

Strawberry Shortcake

By MARTHA LEE

Don't you love the markets in the spring and summer—when the stalls are a mass of tender green? Mother Earth's horn of plenty is turned topsy-turvy to make our dinner tables rich with health and goodness. And don't forget the strawberries—baskets full of big, luscious berries are cheap enough for anybody's plate—or shortcake—at this time of the year. Remember, that your men folk love strawberry shortcake, light and fluffy and topped with whipped, sweet cream.

Strawberry shortcake lovers are divided into several schools, all with different ideas about what constitutes the base for the finest shortcake. Some like plain biscuits; some like rich, sweet biscuits; some insist on sponge cake; and, in the South, where many of our fine food customs have originated, rounds of rich, crisp pastry make a layered shortcake that is delicious.

INDIVIDUAL SHORTCAKES

3 cups sifted cake flour
3 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1½ cups shortening
¾ cup milk
2 quarts crushed, sweetened fruit

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening; add milk all at once and stir carefully until all flour is dampened. Then stir vigorously until mixture forms a soft dough and follows spoon around bowl. Turn out immediately on slightly floured board and knead 30 seconds. Roll ¼ inch thick and cut with floured 3-inch biscuit cutter. Place half of circles on ungreased top and butter tops well. Bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Separate halves of hot biscuits, spread bottom halves with soft butter and some of crushed fruit. Place other halves on top, crust-side down. Spread with butter and remaining fruit. Garnish with whipped cream and additional pieces of fruit. Makes 8 servings.

The dough may be rolled ½ inch thick, cut and baked, then shortcakes split after baking.

The biscuit-school is again subdivided into those who insist the biscuits must be hot when the shortcake is at its best, and those who prefer the biscuits cold.

SHORTCAKE VARIATIONS

Some new tricks in shortcake are always in order. Try making the biscuits with butter or margarine for extra flavor. Brush the tops with butter or margarine just before the biscuits go into the oven. Or try adding a half cup of grated cheese to the flour for the biscuits. Cheese and fruit are good together.

For a sweet biscuit, add a tablespoon of honey for each cup of flour used. Mix the honey with the milk before adding it to the flour. Honey and strawberries are an ambrosial combination. So say those who like honey.

Instead of a plain whipped cream on strawberry shortcake, try a generous spoonful of vanilla ice cream. For this, have the biscuits piping hot. This is strawberry sundae shortcake.

With all its goodness, strawberry shortcake carries hidden health value when the biscuits or the cake are made with enriched flour.

SPONGE CAKE

1 cup sifted cake flour
¼ tsp. salt
5 egg yolks
½ tsp. grated lemon rind
1½ tbsp. lemon juice
5 egg whites
1 cup sifted sugar

Mix flour and salt and sift 3 times. Beat egg yolks until very light and thick, add lemon rind and juice, and beat well. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold in sifted sugar, a small amount at a time. Bake in ungreased 10-inch tube pan in slow oven (325 deg. F.) 1 hour. Remove from oven and invert pan 1 hour before removing cake. Makes 1 large cake.

Smart Set Fashions

Knit a Middy Pullover

MORE MIDDIES . . . that's the unceasing cry in fashion . . . so you'll certainly be in the swim if you knit one! It has all the new regulations for up-to-date middies . . . wide shoulders, a narrow waist and fitted length to give a long torso line. The collar is small, and the tight ribbed hip-band may be rolled up or down. An unusual pattern is achieved by combining knit and purl stitches. For your set of knitting directions, write Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

You Can Be Beautiful

New Ideas for Summer; Raspberry Aids Arrive

By ARLINE GOULD

IT'S PROBABLY the last thought that would occur to you . . . if you were in search of an intriguing new fragrance . . . to get it out of a soda fountain! A stroke of genius, no doubt . . . and the result is a series of bath things and make-up that are the most tantalizingly delicious things to sniff that have come along for ages. Raspberry syrup . . . sherbert . . . ice cream were the inspiration. Everything scented like sun-ripened raspberries!

It's unmistakable . . . and evokes the most startled, pleased expressions from experimenting sniffers. There it is . . . that individual kind of spiciness that belongs to raspberries . . . but you'll notice that as your nose gets accustomed to the scent, a new undertone comes forth . . . and it's a little like crimson rambler roses. That's what makes this new idea in fragrance so much more intriguing!

Because this scent is gay, young and sweet . . . the motif is a little bit more naive than today's gleaming marble and Monel metal soda fountain. Packages and bottles hark back to the iron wire chairs, ice cream freezers, and syrup shakers that were part of the small town soda fountain, once upon a yesterday.

There's an old-fashioned ice cream carton of cardboard which has on a nest of cellophane a "syrup shaker" of raspberry ice cologne. A miniature ice cream can looks as though it should hold raspberry sherbert, but it has "raspberry ice" dusting powder. And a package that looks like a tall raspberry soda, foaming with pink cotton, holds raspberry ice foam bath.

And to top it all, the make-up is the rich, lush color of ripe, red raspberries!

To learn about this most intriguing of new summer beauty ideas, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Love

School Prom Escort

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 16 years of age and would like to invite a young man, who is 21 years of age, to our school prom. One of the boys in my class has asked me to go with him, but I have not accepted, as I feel I would enjoy myself more if I were with the older boy. I've been out with him several times and he's very sociable.

If you think it would be all right to ask him, should I buy the tickets?

BETTY

When one is Sweet Sixteen, to my way of thinking, she should ask the boy she likes best to the Prom. As the years roll on, these happy times are good things to remember. Of course, if you invite the young man, you are supposed to buy the tickets, as he is your guest.

New Ideas for Showers

"SALESMAN'S BAG" REVEALS SHOWER GIFTS

Here's a bridal shower with an hilarious surprise climax. A "brush salesman" bursts into what you've announced as a conventional "dessert-bridge" and opens his bag to reveal beautifully wrapped gifts.

With such clever party ideas on hand, you easily appear an ingenious hostess to your friends.

The "salesman" who interrupts your party is, of course, a friend in disguise—wearing, perhaps, a flashy mustache and loud checked suit. Wait until your guests are contentedly playing bridge, then have him ring your doorbell and inquire loudly for "the lady of the house." Play up by trying to shoo him away until everyone is watching.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

BOSTON NIGHT LIFE took a decidedly military turn last evening—with the Yankee Division Ball at the Ritz Roof and the Military Ball for the benefit of the 101st Infantry at the Copley-Plaza, drawing large numbers of uniformed soldiers from New England camps . . .

These military parties gave the male of the species a chance to rival their wives and sweethearts in the brilliance of their raiment . . . Soldiers and officers were resplendent in everything from olive drab field service uniforms to blue dress, and even the "special" blue dress . . . but we think the handsome military policemen, who looked in at both parties, had the smoothest outfits of the evening . . .

They were completely outfitted in matching faun color caps, trousers and blouses which complimented the bronzy tan of their faces . . . Well polished leather belts and police equipment and spotless white gloves added the final touch . . .

Diana Bird in Merry Throng

GLIMPSED at the Yankee Division party . . . Mrs. George Clement standing at the bar, flanked by Generals Woodruff and Eckfeldt . . . Mrs. Chandler Hovey, Jr., in snowy white lace, practically sitting in the geraniums which edge the roof, to get a better view of the floor show . . . She was in a party with Mrs. Charles Meyer whose red, white and blue gown was very appropriate for the occasion . . .

Diana Bird Conga-ing with Bobby Knowles who was on leave from soldiering at Camp Edwards and sporting "civvies" for a change . . . Mrs. Charles Rimmer, in flame chiffon, ascending to the roof in the elevator with her North Shore neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Warren Walker, Jr. . . .

Charlotte Rantoul with yards of gold beads wound around the wrist of her silver gray dinner gown, looking for Marieeds Heard who was surrounded by a group of stags . . . Cynthia Sortwell dancing with one khaki clad officer after another . . . Justin Griess proudly watching his pretty debutante daughter Ann as she whirled about the dance floor with Charles Inches . . . The line of gold braid festooned caps on the mens' hat rack . . . Red, white and blue corsages on many a feminine shoulder . . . Ernesta Rueter whispering into the ear of her fiance, Tom Lacey, as they whirled through the maize of dancers . . . Mrs. Fisher Nesmith, Jr., and Kitty Pentecost sitting opposite one another at a long table of friends near the entrance of the roof . . . Entertainment by talented boys from Devens and Edwards . . .

Many Socialites Attend Both Parties

LIKE MANY of the military dignitaries, Mrs. James J. Phelan and her daughters Patricia and Priscilla, took in both parties . . . They started at the Ritz for dinner and later occupied a flag bedecked box at the 101st Ball . . . All three wore orchids and glistening jewels to enhance their gowns . . .

Also at the 101st were Col. and Mrs. Paul Kirk, the latter wearing a gown of fuschia chiffon with a bodice of chartreuse embroidered with fuschia sequins . . . Mrs. John G. Downing in white with silver beads . . . the John O'Day family—each feminine member—Mrs. O'Day, Dottie, and Mary—sporting huge white orchids tipped with ruby red on their exquisite gowns . . . Jack Pierce dancing with May Bottomley . . . Katharine Walsh with a large corsage of red, white and blue anenome . . . Ellen Gray in a tri-color gown with gardenias in her auburn hair . . . Mr. and Mrs. Keith Carnegie Steele . . . Mrs. William J. Keville, in white faille made on bouffant lines, and her sisters, Eileen and Cappy O'Connell, selling lucky tickets . . . And many, many more . . .

Thompson-Ames Ceremony in North Easton

BECKY AMES, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Ames of Commonwealth ave. and North Easton, is leading lady in a picturesque country wedding this afternoon when she becomes the bride of Peter S. Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Leland Thompson of Troy, N. Y. . . .

The ceremony in Unity Church, North Easton, is followed by a reception in the beautiful gardens at Langwater, the Ames summer home, which are ablaze with azaleas, rhododendron and mountain laurel blossoms . . .

For her wedding gown the bride has chosen crisp white faille made with a net overskirt appliqued with faille bows . . . Her net veil falls from a coronet of orange blossoms and she is carrying a bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids . . .

Mrs. David Ames of Washington, D. C., who was Elizabeth Motley until her recent wedding in Boston, is serving as matron of honor and the bridesmaids are Barbara Fitzwilliams, cousin of the bride, Anne Blake, Frances Osgood, Faith Thoron, Anne Soule and Martha Thompson, sister of the bridegroom . . . The matron of honor's costume is of French blue chiffon with a matching lace jacket, a pleated halo hat with blue streamers, and a bouquet of spring flowers . . . The bridesmaids are wearing similar costumes in a lighter shade of blue . . .

William L. Thompson, Jr., is best man for his brother . . . The couple will live in Albany, N. Y.

MRS. LELAND G. CAGWIN has plenty of valuable assistance in cutting the cake with her bridegroom's sabre at her recent wedding in Del Monte, Cal. The bride, formerly Jacqueline Smith of Rockport, Mass., is assisted by Lt. Cagwin while looking on are her sister, Mrs. John Archer Logan, Mr. Logan and the bride's mother, Mrs. Howard E. Smith. The couple will honeymoon at Del Monte until June 3 when they sail for Honolulu.

Cagwins Now on Honeymoon

Lieut. and Mrs. Leland George Cagwin (Jacqueline Elizabeth Smith) are honeymooning at Del Monte, Cal., until June 3, when an Army transport will carry them to Honolulu, where the bridegroom will be stationed at Schofield Barracks.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Smith of Rockport, Mass., and Carmel, Cal. Her father is a noted New England artist. The marriage took place Sunday, May 11, in Del Monte Chapel, and was followed by a reception at the Smith residence.

The bride wore a princess gown of ivory Chinese brocade, from which her mother's wedding gown had been fsalioned. Her 150-year-old rose point lace veil was attached to a quaint white satin bonnet and in place of the traditional bridal bouquet she carried an old old family prayer book with white orchied streamers.

The matron of honor was Mrs. John Archer Logan, sister of the bride, who was married in a surprise elopement a few weeks before. She wore white organza with a coronet of red roses and white stock and carried an old-fashioned bouquet. There were five bridesmaids, each of whom carried native California lupin with her white grown.

Two in North Shore Debuts

The first really summery dance of the season takes place on the North Shore this evening when Mr. and Mrs. George Putnam of Manchester entertain at a small party for their debutante niece, Maria "Polly" Thompson of Philadelphia, and K. Laurence "Laurie" Bundy of Boston.

Both debutantes are wearing crisp organdie dresses as are Katharine and Elizabeth Putnam, attractive post deb daughters of the hosts. The dance, which will take place in the house and on the wide terrace overlooking Lobster Cove, will be preceded by a dinner party given at the Essex County Club by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ely Danielson for their house guest, Miss Margaret MacKellar.

Polly is the daughter of Mrs. R. Ellison Thompson of Devon, Pa., who is here for the dance, and Laurie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Bundy of Boston.

A New Figure for Spring

Registered U. S. Patent Office

By IDA JEAN KAIN

With approximately 6,850,000 rheumatic suffers in the country, it is not surprising that I receive frequent appeals for suggestions as to the diet and exercises which might prove helpful in alleviating their condition.

I paid a visit to the famous Arthritis Clinic at New York Post Graduate Hospital.

A staff conference decides the course of treatment for each patient. I was permitted to attend one of these conferences and was impressed by the emphasis given weight control and posture correction for the rheumatoid arthritic.

A HARD TEST

Not many of the patients could pass the flexibility test — simply standing with knees straight and dropping the trunk forward until fingers touch the floor. You might try it. If you pass, you have retained normal suppleness. A slight variation turns the test into a posture corrective: Stand with back to wall, heels a few inches out, legs straight, and back of hips pressed against the wall. Let trunk dangle forward, then try to roll the spine up the wall until you are standing erect, entire back against wall.

When bad posture is a habit, such exercises are necessary to strengthen the muscles involved in maintaining erect posture. It is not enough to try to "stand tall."

Careful attention is also given the position of the feet in weight-bearing—toes should be pointed straight ahead and weight carried on the outer borders of the feet, which is their strongest position. Turning the feet outward not only breaks down the arches but throws the posture out of line. Picking up jacks or marbles with the toes or walking barefoot with toes curled under are good foot exercises.

AVOID TENSION

In some instances, relaxing exercises are stressed. Tension through the muscles sharply increases the discomfort from arthritis.

To begin with, the patient frequently needs to learn to differentiate between tension and the absence of it by contracting and relaxing certain muscle groups. You will get the idea by clenching your hand, then allowing it to drop of its own weight; flexing the arm, then letting it dangle limply.

Anyone can learn to avoid tension by being on guard against unnecessary muscular contraction and by using only the muscles that are needed for routine activities.

Rheumatoid arthritis corresponds to one form of old-fashioned rheumatism and it seems to be reserved for the person of 40 or over whose habits of posture are bad and whose weight varies greatly from the normal. Diets to normalize the weight are also suggested when needed.

You look and feel better with an erect carriage. Send stamped return envelope for Ida Jean Kain's leaflet, "Posture Makes the Figure."

Americans Now . . . And Glad of It, Celebrities, Born In Other Lands, Tell You Why

TOMORROW is "I Am An American Day," proclaimed by the President in recognition of citizens who have attained their majority or who have been naturalized within the past year. The occasion prompted inquiries to a number of foreign-born Americans as to why they are glad to be Americans. Here are their answers.

Fr. E. J. Flanagan

Founder of Boys Town

Birthplace: Ireland

I AM proud to be an American citizen. I cherish my citizenship of the United States. I am glad that I live in a land where religious tolerance and freedom of speech exist; where educational opportunities for youth are universal; where every man, woman and child has the opportunity to advance in accordance with his ambition and ability; where the government is a servant and not a master of the people; where the individual is not merely a pawn of the state; where people are not regimented to promote the ambitions of a dictator, but have the chance of winning for themselves the comforts of the highest standards of living of any nation; where people of all races, creeds live peacefully as neighbors.

I. I. Sikorsky

Aircraft Engineer

Birthplace: Russia

I AM happy to be an American because this great country is the stronghold of liberty and progress; because here each citizen can arrange his life and family as he wants it; can express freely any beliefs or opinions that he may have without fear of persecution or intimidation.

I am proud to be an American because this great country always has been the traditional carrier of idealism, good-will, and help all over the world wherever there was need or suffering.

Sonja Henie

Skater-Movie Actress

Birthplace: Norway

IT WOULD be hard for me to express my gratitude toward America, because I owe this country more than can be repaid in a few words. Aside from the fact that America has literally proven itself a land of golden opportunity for me, I am deeply grateful for its haven and hospitality which my family and I are now enjoying.

But I had adopted America long before the trying times abroad. I chose it as a home for several reasons. Among the American people I have formed staunch and lasting friendships.

Above all (and what better proof can there be of my devotion to this country?) I chose an American as my husband.

Louis Adamic

Author

Birthplace: Austria

IN THE last 10 years I have traveled about 250,000 miles in the United States, in part because I like the place. I like to look at it. I more than like it.

But, to me, America is not only a place, a piece of geography, but an aggregation of people. America, to me, is an idea in process of being realized, a way of life, a collection of principles on the conduct of human affairs; principles which happen to appeal to me.

I WAITED twelve years before applying for my first American papers. When I realized that my work and life belonged to America, I felt that I could and should become an American citizen

I believe that there is no other country today where freedom of life—that vital factor of happiness for humanity—is preserved; where art, particularly musical art, is so deeply appreciated and the importance of art in relation to life is so well understood

Indeed, I am proud of this great nation and proud to be an American

I CAN express with very limited adequacy the passionate devotion to this land that possesses millions of our people, born, like myself, under other skies, for the privilege that this country has bestowed in allowing them to partake of its fellowship.

If one faith can be said to unite a great people, surely the ideal that holds us together beyond any other is our belief in the moral worth of the common man, whatever his race or religion. In this faith America was founded. to this faith have her poets and seers and statesmen and the unknown millions, generation after generation, devoted their lives. BE AN AMERICAN

THOUSANDS of New England people will assemble tomorrow afternoon at Hatch Memorial Shell on Boston's famous Esplanade.

In that beautiful setting they will enjoy one of the finest patriotic programs in Massachusetts history.

They will hear the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky; addresses by Governor Leverett Saltonstall, Senator David I. Walsh and Immigration Director John F. Mulcahey, and music by popular soloists, including Miss Cecile Beattie, Miss Marie Kenney and City Councillor John Wickes.

More important, THEY WILL RE-AFFIRM THEIR FAITH IN AMERICA AND RENEW THEIR LOYALTY TO THE UNITED STATES.

For tomorrow is "I Am An American Day" by Congressional resolution, by Presidential and Gubernatorial proclamation, and by universal observance.

Similar and equally inspiring celebrations will be conducted in many cities and towns of Massachusetts and New England, and in scores of schools.

WE IN AMERICA have very many blessings for which to be thankful.

The loss of freedom and liberty by the unfortunate people who live in the warring nations abroad makes us appreciate HOW MANY.

We live in an abundant land.
We enjoy the privileges and rights of peace.
We can worship as we please.
We can work where we wish.
We can own our own homes.
We can buy food and clothing in unlimited quantities.
We can educate our children and give them advantages that are restricted to special classes or groups elsewhere.
We can rise in our chosen careers or professions without being penalized for our race or creed.
We can truthfully say that in the eyes of the nation, as in the eyes of the Redeemer, we are equal.
Our newspapers are free.
Our ministers of the Gospel preach to us without fear of governmental restriction or reprisal.
We can speak our own minds and vote according to our consciences.
We have the protection of the habeas corpus and the assurance of trial by juries impartially selected.

We know that to "be American" is the highest privilege any man can have; that it brings him the most and best rewards and makes his life happier and more pleasant and more productive of personal satisfaction than any other human estate on earth.

That is why thousands are going to assemble tomorrow in Boston and many other cities of America to demonstrate their affection for the United States; their readiness to serve it, and their willingness to make sacrifices for it.

Every New Englander should plan his Sunday program so that he and his family will be able to see and hear the beautiful and inspiring program on the Boston Esplanade.

OUR BOSTON ACCENT closely resembles the British manner of speaking, claims John Golden, producer of many successful plays.

In fact, Mr. Golden is quite sure that a cultured Bostonian could step into an English play and the audience would never know the difference.

Mr. Golden is partly right, not wholly so.

The truth is that Boston residents speak better English than do the English themselves.

By that, we mean the vast majority of the people.

Thanks to our good public schools, numerous academies and distinguished colleges and universities, Bostonians have achieved a measure of culture equalled by no other people anywhere in the world.

Few persons let a day pass without reading a newspaper, and almost everyone listens to radio broadcasts.

Boston eyes and ears are thus accustomed to the proper expression of thoughts and to good diction.

The situation in England is not so encouraging.

Two-thirds of the people persist in misplacing their "haiches," putting the letter in where it does not belong and omitting it according to whim and fancy.

Also, the average Englishman is addicted to the use of provincialisms, colloquialisms and dialect idiosyncrasies that would make him ridiculous in America.

Graduates of Oxford, Cambridge and the other eminent British institutions of higher learning speak faultless English, and no thoughtful American can fail to admire them.

But only a very small number of the people who live in the British Isles are able to attend these institutions.

Oh, put not your trust in women:
I'm a woman and know by birth
That a woman is always too clever
For the cleverest man on earth.
—MRS. ANON, JR.

A SAN FRANCISCO bachelor sent in the above commenting: "It is amusing the belief persists in women they are smarter than men. Consider the innumerable women given to torch singing after being fooled by men. Think of the many widows outsmarted by men and deprived of their savings. Reflect on the simplicity of all those women who married Bluebeard. When a woman takes the view men are smarter and she has to be careful that is the beginning of wisdom with her and she is on the high road to matrimonial success and happiness."

"WHERE DID YOU get that suit?" a tailor who charges $150 per suit asked me. I named a rival of his who charges the same price. "That fellow is getting pretty good," said the tailor. I was just ribbing the old boy. The suit I had on was a readymade one of a national brand for which I paid $45. Some of the best tailors and designers in the world are those employed by nationally known makers of readymade suits.

THAT PUP AGAIN! Some packing has been going on in our house. And the pup has been sniffing about the trunks. He's a little worried. Last time he wasn't taken along. In the past few days he has been putting on a number of exhibitions evidently designed to show how cute and amusing he is and what a mistake it would be to leave such a laugh producer behind. We are going to take him. When a little fellow, this dog was pretty sick. We said if he recovered we would spoil him and not train or punish him in any way. And we have tried to spoil him and never punished nor trained him, but he's a perfect gentleman. Truly a remarkable animal.

PASSING BY: Mae Murray. Known in the silent film era as "The Girl With the Bee Stung Lips." She is now a Broadway hit doing the Merry Widow Waltz at a night club. Mae's first Broadway success was when she did an imitation of Mary Pickford in the Ziegfeld Follies. Miss Murray was the first film actress I ever interviewed and I recall at the time she presented me with her picture, autographed "From Your Little Friend, Mae Murray" . . . Walter Winchell. Who needs no introduction. He is joining the Naval Reserve with rank of Lieutenant Commander for the duration of his annual vacation. He was in the Navy during the World War. Walter is a good fellow and a loyal friend. He gets a little intense now and then on the air and in print, but that is just enthusiasm.

GREAT IDEA: Antiseptic snuff would be an excellent protection against winter colds. Says an eminent British medico. Boy, there's an idea. Maybe I will go into the antiseptic snuff business and make myself a few million. What would be a good slogan for Durling's antiseptic snuff? How about "One Sniff of Snuff Is Enough?" Not so hot, is it? Well, I'll have plenty of time to figure out something before the winter cold [illegible].

ASIDES: From a very young reader of Los Angeles comes the following communication: "Dear Mr. Durling: Once in your column you wrote that kids were growing boys and should be given plenty to eat, even second and third helping. My father believes what you say, so he told my mother to give me even more to eat. So now when I ask for more I nearly always get it, thanks to you, Mr. Durling.

SIDELIGHTS: A great student and observer of life has said that all men of genius are great lovers . . . My campaign to bring about having strawberry shortcake for breakfast has failed. However, I had some for dinner last night. In London, strawberries are retailing for $8 a pound. That's about 20 cents for each strawberry. At that rate, an order of strawberry shortcake would set you back about $5 in England . . . That was the American Hospital in Paris and the meals there were marvelous. Equal to those served in the best hotels and restaurants of the city . . . "I guess I am just plain ignorant," writes a New Yorker, "but what are the Ides of March?" The Ides was the name the Romans gave to the thirteenth of every month except March, May, July and October, when the Ides fell on the fifteenth . . . How much war news and comment can you absorb daily? I have cut down on my consumption of this and am now taking only one sizer-up of the general situation, one Washington commentator and one fireside general. And I feel a lot better.

NOTES: From London newspaper: "Nazi population grows hysterical during raids by the Royal Air Force. Evidently it takes a people of a superior race, such as the British, to remain calm at such times" . . . VICTOR MATURE GETS BODYGUARD

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, May 17—This week Victor Mature, the movie star who plays the romantic lead opposite Gertrude Lawrence in "Lady in the Dark," received a threatening letter. It concluded with the warning: "And the first time I see you, I will shoot you" . . . Mature gave that letter to the police yesterday—at the W. 54th st. station. "You'll have a bodyguard immediately," the police assured him. "The bodyguard will be with you every minute, guarding you—until we find the person who wrote this letter" . . . "I don't want any bodyguard until tomorrow," Mature stated . . . "But why not immediately?" he was asked . . . "Because," he explained, "tonight—tonight I have a date with Martha Stephenson."

LISTEN, WORLD!

by ELSIE ROBINSON

I'VE NEVER seen a city blacked out. But I remember once in the mines—

It was years ago. We'd been exploring some old workings, a dreary and dangerous job, what with rotten timbers, cave-ins, treacherous pools of slime. For hours we'd picked our way along by the small, flickering lights in our caps. Gradually we separated, following different seams.

Shortly after we did, something went wrong with my lamp and it went out. I called. There was no answer.

I have never forgotten the hour that followed. I remember that hour whenever I see a face bewildered and blasted by life . . . a face that does not know where to turn. I, too, did not know where to turn, there in that blacked out shaft. A wrong step might mean death.

SUPPOSE they didn't find me? Well, what if they didn't? Thousands of people better than I had been lost, never found. Why should I think I'd be an exception? Why should I expect to be favored or helped?

BUT HOW I WANTED TO BE SAVED! HOW I WANTED TO GET BACK TO THE SWEET, FREE AIR. IF ONLY THERE WERE LIGHT . . . ONE LITTLE PINPOINT OF LIGHT TO POINT THE WAY.

Something was whining . . . snuffling, panting like a dog. Listening, my scalp went cold, for that something was myself. Even that short space of darkness had sent my senses reeling. I remember gulping . . . swallowing actual screams.

Then, mercifully, a spark glowed in the distance . . . a voice spoke . . . a light flamed. And sanity clicked back.

I've never seen a city blacked out . . . but I'm seeing something worse these days. A human blackout. Security flickering out. Hate and horror rising about us in waves, creeping into our hearts. And, along with the terror, the numbing sense of our own futility that is a thousand times worse than fear. For who are we that we should be saved when so many have perished?

If Heaven wouldn't intercede for gallant little Finland and Greece, for tortured Poland, for heartbroken France and all the rest, why should He protect America . . . or Mary Jones . . . or Bill Smith?

DAY BY DAY it grows upon us, that dreadful doubt. Day by day our confidence weakens, flickers, fails. If only there were light . . . just a pinpoint of light to point the way through the blackout!

Then suddenly it comes. A spark glows in the darkness, a voice speaks with confidence. Someone whispers, "THERE'LL ALWAYS BE A GOD!" And the old faith flames, the old courage rises, the old peace touches us for a brief, healing moment. WE RELIGHT OUR LAMP AND GO ON!

MY DAY

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Friday—Yesterday afternoon I had the pleasure of having Madame Ruiz-Guinazu, wife of the Argentine Minister of Foreign Affairs, her two daughters and Madame Espil, wife of the Argentine Ambassador, have tea with me. The girls are rather sad at having to leave so soon, for they felt they could spend a month with ease in the United States.

Madame Ruiz-Guinazu was fairly exhausted by the amount of sightseeing which they had done, but everything was of great interest to her. She spoke with enthusiasm of the National Gallery and of the beauty of our Capital city. Then she told me at length of her interest in the Congressional Library, particularly the collection of books in Braille, and the new development of talking books for the blind.

Her son is in charge of this work in the Argentine. Having become blind himself at the age of seventeen, he evidently determined to lead a busy, useful and, therefore, happy life. He has written three books and is leading the way for the whole of South America in the development of opportunities for blind people.

What a wonderful thing it is to use one's handicaps, not only to enrich one's own character and personality, but to enrich the lives of others facing the same difficulties.

AT 4:30 THE Cabinet ladies and I lined up for the reception given to the women executives in the various government departments. We had hoped to have it out of doors, but the sky looked so threatening that we decided it was safer to stay inside.

About 1750 ladies passed by us in an hour and a half. I am always particularly happy to entertain this group, for I feel they are responsible for much of the good work done in the government.

My friend, Mrs. Charles Fayerweather, from Lebanon, N. Y., and her son, John, are staying with me. After a quiet dinner they went out to visit some friends, while I spent the evening working at my desk and finally caught up on the mail.

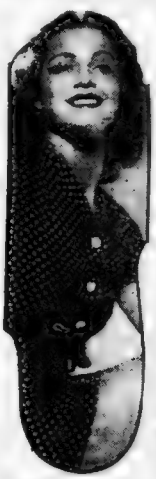
MARTHA RAYE PLANS FILM COMEBACK

By Louella O. Parsons

Martha Raye

HOLLYWOOD, May 17—Looks as if Martha Raye and Universal will get together on a deal for Martha to play the role in "Hold On to Your Hat" she created on the stage. The funny girls are really coming back on the screen and I don't mean the glamour girls who turned screwball. Judy Canova is a one-girl riot in "Sis Hopkins" and now that Martha is back in Hollywood there's no reason why she shouldn't climb back to stardom again. The only reason I've ever figured out for her boxoffice slip was that Carole Lombard, Claudette Colbert, Irene Dunne and other glamour girls almost pushed the comediennes out of the picture by turning comics during the screwball fad.



CAROL BRUCE

Martha and Neal Lang, who will be married any day now, expect to remain in Hollywood for several months—but Martha says she'll always take time off to do a stage stint. Interesting that Martha, who used to be sensitive about the size of her mouth, realizes it's an asset.

THE LUCK of the Irish has nothing on the luck of Warners, who had a cameraman in San Diego, shooting backgrounds for "Dive Bomber" when 2d Lieut. Walter S. Osipoff was brought to safety in one of the most spectacular mid-air rescues in aviation history. Osipoff dangled for 30 minutes from the wing of a parachute ship before Lieut. W. W. Lowrey and Chief Machinist's Mate J. R. McCants saved him. The Warners ship was piloted by Frank Clark with Winton Hawk at the camera. Will the Navy permit Warners to use those shots in "Dive Bomber"? If they do you can bet Warners will incorporate them in their movie.

IT KEEPS THE STORY department at 20th Century-Fox busy hunting for musicals for their three blonde beauties, Alice Faye, Betty Grable and Carole Landis. Yes, Carole sings too and her next picture will be "Cadet Girl," in which she will be starred with a name band. Ray McCarey, who signed a new contract, is scheduled to direct. Ever since I have been writing about movies, Ray has been known as Leo McCarey's brother. Now he stand shoulder to shoulder with Brother Leo. Ray's promotion came after he made a picture called "The Cowboy and the Blonde," a sleeper, if you know what I mean, and a picture which gave George Montgomery stardom and promoted Mary Beth Hughes' stock.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Dennis Morgan stopped in to say au revoir. He's off for Chicago for the "I Am An American" program and he told me a funny story about his little boy. He has two children—a boy and a girl. The little boy already shows signs of being musical and so Dennis' father took the child to hear John Charles Thomas. "How do you like him?" Dennis' father asked the little boy. "Well, I think he sings even gooder than Daddy," was the reply. Dennis, who has a gorgeous voice, will be starred in "Two Steps to Heaven," in which Warners at first had talked of starring Bing Crosby.

GRANNY SIGNS UP

by Louis Davidson

"BREWSTER CALDEN WILSON!" Grandmother Wilson's tones were as stiff and unbending as her prim back as she stood like a New England nemesis by her grandson's bed.

"What a time to be still asleep! Stay out all night. Sleep all day. What's the world coming to? I declare . . . when I was young . . ."

"Brew," as his friends factually and facetiously had shortened his name, rolled over, took his arm down from across his eyes and blinked at the sun shining through the windows. And the sun had no difficulty in so doing, as Grandmother Wilson had rolled the shades to the top.

"Aw, now, Granny . . . can't you let a fella catch a coupla winks? What's there to get up for?" But Granny was obdurate.

"The good of your system and the good of your soul," she informed her grandson crisply. "Breathe in some of this morning air. I'm ashamed of you. Why . . . your grandfather used to . . ."

"Yes, I know." Brewster reluctantly swung his feet out of bed and hunched to a sitting posture. "He got up at 4 o'clock and shucked the cows and milked the corn . . . or was that my great-grandfather? But, Granny, we can pay a man to do that now. Who am I to take a good job from a man who likes to shuck cows and milk corn, or whatever it is they do? It isn't fair that I should. And, just what time is it?"

"Nine o'clock," Grandmother Wilson made the words sound like the portentous tolling of a bell or a tocsin of alarm, like anything in fact but a simple announcement of the time of day on a pleasant morning, in a very beautiful mansion set in attractive grounds on the edge of a very pretty Connecticut town.

Brewster groaned and flopped back into bed.

"There should be a law against there being such a time. Let me have just a few more winks." But Grandmother Wilson marched into the bathroom and turned on the tap.

"If I don't hear you whistling in there in five minutes," she warned, "I'll come up and give you a bath myself. Oh, I've done it many a time," at his shocked, "Why Granny!" She marched out and closed the door.

THE BIG QUESTION

A half hour later, bathed, shaved and in fresh slacks, Brewster sat at the little table on the terrace, finishing his leisurely breakfast. From the glint in his grandmother's eyes he knew she was bracing herself for an argument. Not that she needed much bracing. She had the old-fashioned idea that argument at table is bad for the digestion. But, as soon as the last drink of coffee was down, the last bite of toast swallowed, she was ready.

"What are you going to do about this war business?" she asked.

Brewster had known this would come to a head from hints, half-questions and definite remarks she had dropped the last few weeks. America was debating the "All Aid to Britain," was arranging her own defense, was trying to face the possibility of an invader casting covetous eyes on her rich resources. Grandmother Wilson had been as absorbed, as excited as any of the younger generation. But she had not been able to imbue Brewster with her zeal.

"Let come what comes," he had answered her arguments. "We can't settle it here." And he had gone on playing tennis, polo, riding, driving, going to dances, attending the theater, gone sometimes all day and well into the night.

Since Brewster had been 12, his grandmother had been mother, father, sister, brother and friend, as well as guide and mentor to him. She could not realize that now he was of age. So, while he insisted on living his own life, he did not like to clash or worry her any more than he could help.

For three generations the Wilsons had lived in the little town of Malden, first on a farm, when the town was just a village, then in an imposing home in the village itself, then in the mansion built on the old farm which now was a modern, thoroughly up-to-date manor. The Wilsons always had prospered and Brewster was in command of quite a "tidy sum" as the country folks put it.

Intensely patriotic, Grandmother Wilson could look back along a line of soldiers in the family . . . Revolutionary War, Mexican War, Spanish War, and World War. And now the possibility of another conflict stirred her nationalism anew and she felt the Wilson name should again be blazoned on her country's history.

So, as soon as Brewster turned away from the table, stretched his rangy six foot one and lit a cigarette, she began:

"What are you going to do, son?" she was almost pleading. "I know you registered for selective service. But you hadn't ought to wait (at times, she dropped into colloquialisms) for them to come and get you. That ain't the way your grandfather and your father . . ." Brewster interrupted. He sat up straight, leaned forward earnestly.

"Granny . . . you're an old darling. But why don't you let me arrange my own life. Listen . . . I've got money, plenty of it. I can do a lot of good with it. I can keep on making money and, if I enlist, much of the income stops, as you know. Money is needed as much as are men. Let me keep on furnishing the 'sinews' of this defense program, even though it is in a nominal vice president job.

He stared, wondering if he were seeing a ghost.

"eBlieve me, it is best now. If all the young men who have money and are managing profitable enterprises were to quit cold and march off to camp, can't you see how that would slow things down?

"After all Grany . . . we do have a modern slant, we young fellows and these are modern times. It is very romantic to think of me shouldering a gun, but today the fighting is done by knowing how to save men, not by sacrificing them."

Grandmother Wilson rose stiffly. She spoke mildly.

"If that's the way you think, son, all right. I just wanted to know." But her straight shoulders sagged a little as she walked into the house. Brewster looked after her worriedly, then he shook his head.

"I know I'm handling this right," he was justifying himself. Then he started out on his day's round.

For a change he was home for dinner. But Granny was out. Then he began to worry. But when the cook was beginning to despair of keeping things palatable, Brewster heard his grandmother's car drive up. He went into the hall to greet her.

He stared, wondering if he were seeing a ghost. Then he realized that the all-white figure with the floating, veil-like headdress was Granny. As she walked steadily toward him, a little lump choked him. He saw the red emblem on the headdress. He stepped forward to take the little figure in his arms. But Granny drew back.

"In every war in which our country was engaged" she spoke clearly, "a Wilson has worn a uniform. Now, in this defense and preparedness program, a Wilson must take a part. You don't seem inclined that way, so I have done something about it. I . . ." she faltered a little, then lifted her head proudly. "I joined the Red Cross today. I wanted to serve in some other way, but they wouldn't take me in any Home Defense Unit. They said I'm too old. But I can do something in Red Cross.

She was looking straight at him, trying to keep the tears out of her eyes. She did not reproach, voiced no recriminations. But the mute protest of the little white-clad figure was eloquent.

Brewster drew a long breath. He stepped forward. Despite her stiff, passive resistance, he picked her up, carried her upstairs to his room, set her down in a chair, and knelt before her, much as he had done when a very little lad and was learning his prayers.

"Granny, darling," he was as solemn as she, I didn't want to tell you for fear you would worry. I tried every way to side track you. But I see it's best we two 'soldiers' should talk this out. He smiled at her gasp. He went to a closet, unlocked it.

BREWSTER TELLS ALL

"See," he brought out a uniform. "In words of one syllable I have been using all my spare time training for aviation. You know I've done a lot of flying, but flying a pleasure craft isn't the same as a bomber." Granny's clasped hands were lifted to her heart. "Yes, Granny, a bomber."

"You see . . . a crowd of us fellows whose fathers and grandfathers piled up a bit of money for them have wondered what was best for us to do. We've all been to military schools and so don't need camp training or discipline. Of course we all registered, but we can enlist any time we like in spite of that.

"So we have been forming groups all over the country to perfect ourselves in aviation. It's a long story, Granny. But the greater part of our defense, if defense we must have here, will be air defense. We have a lot of coast line, a lot of inland territory which must be watched and protected. We're going to need patrol duty no end, and thousands of skilled aviators.

"The government is doing all it can. But, Granny, we need all this in a hurry. We don't want the invader to get a foothold here. It may be pretty dangerous, Granny, and I thought you'd have more peace of mind if you thought I was just idling my time. But darling lady . . . I underestimated you." He gathered her in his arms and set her on his knee.

"Now will you take off that uniform and look after the house? Let your grandson do the fighting."

But Granny shook her head. "Now, more than ever I'll keep this on. Oh, my dear, dear boy. I want to be ready, too. I hope I'll never be needed. But I'll be on hand if I am. And, now," she got up from his knees and smoothed her dress.

"You go and get dressed for whatever silly idea you have on hand for tonight. And, by the way . . . when did you get time for all this, you've been talking about?"

Brewster chuckled. "Granny . . . after all, you're just a woman and a man can get around you. I haven't played polo or tennis all summer. Every day when you thought I was fooling my time away, I was out at our field. You'll have to come and see it some day. You'll get a kick out of it."

Granny laughed as she reached up to pat his cheek. She held him close a minute.

"Oh, son . . . you're your great grandfather and your grandfather and . . . your father, all rolled into one."

They went down to dinner, arm in arm, unconsciously keeping step, together.

JURY WARNED ON STRANGLE CASE EVIDENCE

FALL RIVER, May 17—The jury in the trial of Frank Pedro, 25, of New Bedford, charged with the murder of 23-year-old Irene Perry, today was recessed until Monday, with warning by Judge Walter L. Collins not to discuss evidence over the week-end.

Judge Collins told jurors testimony should not be considered until after the trial was over, and it was unwise to base conclusions on early evidence.

Meanwhile, three well known doctors have expressed the opinion that the girl died of strangulation, probably about two weeks before her body was found in a lane in Dartmouth last July 31.

Featuring the medical testimony was that of Dr. Alan R. Moritz, professor of legal medicine at Harvard, who demonstrated on Prosecutor Frank E. Smith just how he found a rope which was used to cause the girl's death. He used a piece of string to make the demonstration, tying several knots about the throat of the assistant district attorney.

Dr. Moritz added that he found no gunshot or stab wounds on the body and that it was his opinion that strangulation caused death.

Other medical men who testified similarly were Medical Examiner William Rosen of New Bedford and Dr. Edwin B. Hill, research fellow at Harvard.

Joseph G. Perry, father of the slain girl, took the stand just before court closed for the day and told a story of how he had given her $2.75 to make purchases for herself at a dry goods store on the night that she disappeared. Clerks at the store testified she had bought a playsuit and socks with the money and paid $1 on an old account.

Curley Must Show Property for Levy

Former Mayor Curley and Dr. Joseph Santosuosso have been ordered into court next month to show personal property on which the city can levy a superior court judgment against them for a total of $71,043.

Curley has been ordered to appear in West Roxbury court on Monday morning, June 2, and Dr. Santosuosso has been summoned to appear in the civil session of Boston municipal court on Friday, June 20. The city claims the money was improperly retained in connection with settlement of a claim for $85,000 against the city by the General Equipment Corporation.

VIEW OF OLDHAM LAKE where bathing . . . boating and fishing will be enjoyed by the residents of Oldham Village, attractive summer property.

Sale of 40 Lots Spurs Pembroke Development

Forty lots were sold last week-end at the opening sale of Oldham Village, Pembroke, lake resort property. Many new cottages are now under construction.

A steady stream of automobiles drove through the development and oh's and ah's were heard on all sides. The advantages of Oldham Village are so easily seen that there was no need of salesmen's explanation. Many tentative sales were also made.

ALL SPORTS ENJOYED

This delightful property, formerly the exclusive Oldham Gun Club, and now subdivided as an ideal vacation spot for the entire family, has every possible advantage to be found in such a resort. The lake itself is the last word and offers many hours of relaxing sport almost in your own back yard. It is well stocked and thoroughly interesting. Boating, sailing, swimming . . . all these sports can be enjoyed. Every property owner has the use of a clean, safe beach for private use. The youngsters can be brought up at Oldham the way you want and privacy is assured.

BEAUTY SPOT

Pines spread themselves all over the development and offer a picturesque setting. Only poets could completely describe the visual beauties of these trees and what they do to enhance the attractiveness of Oldham. One fact is easily understandable. Oldham is refreshingly cool in the summer.

Many new cottages are now under construction. These can be bought for a low-down payment with very easy monthly payments. Oldham Village is about 20 miles from Quincy. Route 3 to Pembroke, then right on Route 14, about 2½ miles on Route 14 leads directly to the property.

Trusty Caught In Pennsylvania

Massachusetts officers today went to Philadelphia for William Miller, 46, State Prison trustee, captured near there after less than two weeks of stolen freedom.

Miller, who escaped over the wall on May 5 with the aid of a crude ladder, was picked up in Landsdowns, a suburb of Philadelphia.

Officer John McHugh of Landsdowne said the man was acting suspiciously and was unable to account for $116 in his possession.

Philadelphia police, according to press dispatches, went to a hotel where Miller had been staying and recovered loot valued at $500 allegedly stolen by Miller in six burglaries since his escape.

Ship Plant Foreman Has Holiday—on Ship

The traditional "motorman's holiday" started today for Jack Mosher, foreman at the Fore River shipbuilding plant in Quincy.

What would be the vacation choice of a man who has helped to build many a ship? Why, of course—a sea voyage. And that's what Mosher chose. He and Mrs. Mosher sailed today on the S. S. Alleghany on a southern cruise.

It seems that since the National League baseball team changed their name back to the Braves, Commonwealth Chevrolet has become the Bee Hive on account of the great activity selling cars. Mel Hershon, the old reliable, is still setting a furious pace and the staff has been added to with two new arrivals who are old hands at selling cars. They are Herb Clark and Bob Cohen.

DODGERS' FANS COCKY AS REDS STUMBLE

HEARD ALONG Broadway . . . You cannot get into Ebbetts Field, Brooklyn, for a Saturday or Sunday Dodger game unless you have purchased your tickets in advance . . . The park only holds 32,000 . . . With 60,000 persons anxious to attend the important games.

LARRY MacPHAIL

Brooklyn fans would like the city of New York to sell to the Brooklyn club some of the street land now adjoining Ebbetts Field . . . This would enable Larry MacPhail to enlarge the seating capacity of his stands by 10,000 . . . The chief opposition to the plan comes from the politicians who don't like MacPhail . . . Larry reduced the number of complimentary season passes and slapped a service charge on them that made their holders feel as if they were paying for a champagne cocktail at one of the swanky bars.

Now that the Reds have shown signs of slowing up, Brooklyn fans are cockier than ever . . . They feel certain that Leo Durocher's club will win the National League pennant . . . The Giants are doing poor business at the Polo Grounds, while the Yanks are running behind the figures of the days of the colorful Babe Ruth and long hitting Lou Gehrig . . . Baseball fans insists upon a real show . . . They get it in Brooklyn.

HORSEMEN WITH their stables at Belmont Park are praising the ruling of the New York Racing Commission setting $1500 as the lowest purse at a New York track . . . The Commission passed its ruling following the boom business at Jamaica . . . Attendance and mutuel figures are soaring ahead in New York, and the Commission felt that the horsemen, who put on the show, are entitled to a fair share of the spoils . . . All John Public asks for are a few winners.

Dave Wilson, Boston American handicapper, has established such a national reputation as a handicapper that his graded handicaps on Suffolk Downs and other New England tracks are being published daily in the New York Journal-American . . . Win With Wilson is as much a slogan in New York as it is in Boston . . . Alfred G. Vanderbilt may be found each afternoon at Belmont Park . . . I hear Vanderbilt has increased his stock holdings in Belmont.

Whirlaway, the wonder three-year-old of the year, is expected to be an odds on favorite when he starts in the Belmont Stakes . . . Eddie Arcaro, of course, will be up on Whirlaway . . . Arcaro has overcome Whirlaway's tendency to run out on turns . . . I thought Whirlaway's showing in the Preakness was even more impressive than his victory in the Derby . . . In the Preakness Whirlaway had to come from last place to win . . . Broadway hears that Challedon has been showing good form in his workouts at Hollywood, Cal., where he is being pointed for the $75,000 Gold Cup race.

New Yorkers were interested in the announcement from the Hollywood track that it would take a complete photo of each race. The patrol judges will be equipped with movie cameras and each patrol judge will take a section of the race . . . The pictures will be taken in colored film which will show the colors of the various stables . . . The movies will be run off before the stewards and Racing Commission and will give these officials an opportunity to see if there was any improper riding at any stage of the race.

Hollywood was one of the spots where the Californian jockey ring, linked with crooked bookmakers, trimmed the Californian betting public of millions of dollars . . . The track intends to take every possible precaution to see there is no recurrence of the scandal.

The New York tracks intend to keep operating even if the United States gets involved in the war . . . They point to the fact England and Germany still have racing, and find that it is a good tonic to relieve public tension.

JIMMY JOHNSTON considers Abe Simon, his 250-pound heavyweight, as the only real threat to Joe Louis . . . Johnston is picking Louis to win from Buddy Baer and Billy Conn . . . That is where Simon comes in, and Jimmy says when he goes out he will be heavyweight champion of the world . . . Simon lasted 13 rounds with Louis in Detroit when nobody gave him a chance of going five heats.

Mike Jacobs will drop over to Washington early next week to supervise the final details of the Joe Louis-Buddy Baer bout that takes place at Griffith Stadium on Friday night . . . Mike is anticipating a gate of $100,000.

Cleveland still rules a hot favorite with baseball books to win the American League pennant . . . Nobody wants to wager on the Tigers since Hank Greenberg swapped a baseball bat for a rifle . . . The Yanks still have a following which believes that if Cleveland falters they will be the club to win the championship.

When the Red Sox are mentioned, Broadway bettors will admit that man for man the Sox are as strong as any club in the league, but they insist that the lack of pitchers and the inconsistency of Cronin's club on the road will prevent them from winning the pennant.

New York is for all possible aid to Britain, but the feeling is very strong against the United States entrance into the war . . . Important New York industrialists who are friendly to the Administration have told President Roosevelt that it will be 1942 before our defense program is rolling on high . . . Until then they say we will not be prepared for war . . . Meanwhile they contend we should do everything possible to assist Britain.

Bishop Takes on Beard In Woodland Match Play

By BILL GRIMES

After passing their stroke competition tests, the Woodland Invitation qualifiers set out to play the first and second rounds of match play today at the Auburndale course.

Ted Bishop, of the home club, who is the amateur champion of the state and Mel Demarais, now playing from Portsmouth, N. H., were the co-fedalists of the qauilfying round with 73s. Bishop and Demarais were seeded in the No. 1 and No. 16 positions, respectively, while young Dave Sullivan, Blue Hill and Pet Jarboe, Woodland, were also seeded at eighth and ninth.

MORE SERIOUS GOLFER

In the first round of match play, Ted Bishop set out to play Warren Beard of Charles River. Although he is a good golfer, Beard's chances of eliminating the state titilist are very slight, for Bishop, who was put out by Emory Stratton in the semi-finals a year ago is determined to win this year.

Mel Demarais drew Bennie Benson for his first round opponent and in a scratch match he's favored to take the measure of the Woodlander.

Dave Sullivan set out with Carl Moore, of radio fame, who, although he may or may not be a comedian near a "mike", is a serious veteran when he's playing competitive golf. However, the "bookies" have made young Sullivan the favorite.

HEFFRON VS. FAY

Pete Jarboe can have trouble with Bruno Minkley for the latter has played a lot of golf and is a pretty good shot maker.

The other two matches in the upper bracket were Jim Grogan against long John O'Donnell and Frank Harney taking on Es Bailey of Trapelo. In the lower half, Jim Heffron faced Joe Fay, who was a semi-finalist a year ago, and Stan Hobbs, Bear Hill, against Bob Graham, Woodland.

The second rounds are to be played this afternoon and the semi-finals tomorrow.

SURPRISE. Bob Giles, Dallas, Tex. boy from Dartmouth, who shot a 72 in first round of N. E. intercollegiate golf at Oakley. Dartmouth's best varsity players are competing in the Eastern intercollegiates at Stamford, Ct., and Bob was left behind. Only two shots behind medalist Alex Gustafson from Ct. University, Giles had a good chance of copping N. E. title today.

Princeton Meets Dartmouth for Eastern Title

STAMFORD, Ct., May 17 (AP)—Dartmouth and Princeton won their way into the championship flight of the Eastern Intercollegiate Golf Ass'n in 18-hole matches here at the Woodway Country Club each defeating two opponents to dissolve triple ties in the standings of the Northern and Southern divisions of the league.

They met here today to determine the championship.

Dartmouth, playing in the Northern Division, had the easier time of the two, defeating Yale, 7½ to 1½, and Harvard 8 to 1. Harvard defeated Yale, 7 to 2.

Princeton eliminated Georgetown and Penn State in the Southern Division by identical scores, 5 to 4. Georgetown won over Penn State in another 5-4 match.

Figley and Capt. Bill Clark of Dartmouth were the low individual scorers, Figley shooting a 71 and Clarke a 72. Clark and Maxwell teamed up to shoot a low best-ball score of 67.

DARTMOUTH, BROWN GOLFERS PLAY OFF SECOND PLACE TIE

With the Lord Jeffs of Amherst crowned New England intercollegiate golf champs, Dartmouth and Brown decide the second place deadlock play which saw both teams tied at 307 each.

Amherst won with a 306 total and the runner-up spot will be written off during the first 18 holes of today's medal play at Oakley Country Club. This consolation play has been arranged for collegians who failed to qualify. Fourth place in the college championship was taken by Wesleyan, which totalled 309 strokes.

In winning, Amherst's talented Dick Durkes slapped a dynamic hole-in-one.

SECOND TO GUSTAFSON

Durkes made his once-in-a-lifetime shot on the Oakley third hole—a 210-yard uphill hole which has a concealed green. The ball struck well up on the shoulder of the green and rolled slowly, but as pretty as you could please, across 30 feet and into the cup. Durkes put together a 35 and 36 for a 71 total over the 18 hole circuit.

Despite his sensational shot, Durkes had to be contented with secondary honors for Alex Gustafson of the University of Connecticut won medalist honors with a one-under-par 70.

37 IN RUNNING

Tied with Durkes at 71 was Larry Harrigan of Rhode Island.

Winding up in the fourth spot was Dartmouth's Robert Giles, who put together a 37 and 35 for a 72.

Thirty-seven qualifiers continued medal play today which found Harvard's R. Paine and Lowell Tech's R. W. Feade teeing off at 9:10.

Harvard Crews Row on Severn

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 17—The undefeated Harvard crew arrived here early today and went for a short workout over the course which they were to row this afternoon against the Middies and Penn.

Tom Bolles, Harvard coach said that he would stick by his plans to use Sophomore Buss Cruwen, as pace setter. In time trials during this week, the Harvard eight showed terrific speed in recent workouts.

Colt Wagner, who has been stroking the varsity in earlier races, will handle the pace setting job in the jayvee boat

INDIANS PITCH FELLER IN HOPE TO SWEEP SOX

By FRANK FENWAY

Not content with forcing our bruised and bleeding Red Sox to dine off the mantelpiece these past two days, those murderous Cleveland Indians have nominated their one-man Panzer division, Bob Feller, to administer a final boot.

Imagine getting pasted by Maxie Baer and Tony Galento and then staggering to your dogs to find Joe Louis leering at you, and have some idea as to how the Red Sox must feel this sunny Saturday.

Held to six hits in the opener, and but one more blow yesterday when their old comrade Jim Bagby did a job, the Hose now find the Mr. Big of Baseball opposing any chance they might have of partially getting even.

That's having to make it the hard way, but there's a fighting chance the Red Sox can do it and the Sox, whatever else they may be, are a fighting ball club.

The young man with an ARM has never been held in any particular awe by the local thumpers, and on more than one occasion when he's tangled with them, Rapid Robert has been the one to yodel "Uncle."

Indeed, only the day before yesterday he nearly lost a decision here in Boston, when called to the mound to stem a last inning rally.

He tried to pour a fast one past another child prodigy, one Ted Williams, and child Theodore belted Mr. Feller's Sunday pitch square on the snoot.

WAGNER CAN DO IT

Unfortunately he pumped it right into the glove of a surprised Harold Trosky, no relation to the other revolutionist, and a double play resulted.

Bobby got away with that one, but rest assured, if all the Red Sox tee off on him this peeyem the way Teddy did Thursday, he'll have his Saturday night bath long before schedule.

Speaking of early baths, a young man who hasn't had to take many thus far this short season will be toiling for the home town today, although his record would stamp him as something of a soft touch.

He is Broadway Charlie Wagner, a good boy and a swell young pitcher who hasn't rolled anything but twos, threes and twelves on fortune's dice thus far.

As a matter of fact, he's getting none the best of it this afternoon, drawing Feller for an opponent, but he'll keep throwing them in there and just maybe he'll come up with a "natural" for a change.

Much as you like to favor a home team, it must be admitted that the Indians took the first two games of this current series strictly because they were the better ball club.

Their pitching has been superior, their fielding has been vastly superior to that shown by the Red Sox and their general sparkle and hustle made the Sox look lusterless in comparison.

The general opinion of the majority of those who witnessed both games is that the Indians are the best-looking ball club to show at Fenway Park this season.

NOT FOLDING THIS YEAR

It has long been a baseball axiom that the Indians fold when the going gets tough, but the Indians out on the field these last couple of afternoons doesn't look like a quitting ball club.

It's a club with great pitching, an infield that is easily the class of the league, an outfield that is at least adequate and beaucoup power at the dish.

A tough combination to tip over, my friends, a real hard combination to beat.

"IT'S RIGHT OUT THERE." Roger Peckinpaugh, manager of Cleveland Indians, shows Pitcher Bob Feller where mound is at Fenway Park. Feller, a 6-2 record behind him, was scheduled to take that mound against Red Sox this afternoon.

Boston Evening American Photo

"HAVEN'T WE MET BEFORE?" It seems we have, because, left to right, these gentlemen are Jim Bagby, Gene (Choo-Choo-Kah-Rah) Desautels and Joe Heving, who were shunted to Cleveland Indians while the Red Sox were blinded by the winter snows. They're doing all right, too. Bagby and Holy Cross Gen were batterymates in 9-3 Thursday triumph over Sox. Heving is still putting out fires. And all three smell world series smoke.

Braves Call on Youth To Grab Cardinal Final

ST. LOUIS, May 17—The long promised youth movement swings into action along the Bravesfront today when Alva Javery, a Bay State product from the littletown of Oxford, gets his first starting chance.

And he's being thrown into no soft spot either. Given the task of closing the three game series with the Cardinals which is all even now, Alva will tangle with that famed hill-billy Lon Warnecke who has been around a long time.

Age, though, hasn't retarded the effectiveness of the old master as four wins in four official starts this year shows.

Ordinarily it would seem like suicide to start Javery but Stengel feels otherwise.

FAILED FIVE TIMES

The Braves pilot decided on Dick Errickson, Bill Posedel, Jim Tobin and Manny Salvo as his big four at the start of the year. All four were veterans and proven producers. The results, though, have been far from satisfactory.

Errickson hasn't won a game in five starts; Tobin and Salvo have been good, bad and indifferent while Posedel retarded by a bad elbow looked great in his first two starts but he fell off badly in the second game of this Cardinal series.

Bowing to the Cards 4 to 0, Posedel was around for only three innings during which time he was nicked for five solid blows and three runs.

BROUGHT ALONG SLOWLY

Lefty Joe Sullivan went the rest of the way and turned in another great relief effort but it was to no avail as Harry Gumbert, whom the Cards had secured from the Giants earlier in the week, just signed with the Stengelers.

Sullivan, of course, is no youngster but he has been sharing brilliant relief roles with Art Johnson and Frank Lamanna, two of the newer members. All three are going to get starting chances together with Javery.

As far as Javery is concerned,

TODAY A YEAR AGO—Stanford relay team bettered American two-mile record with 7:38.8.

THREE YEARS AGO—Pam Barton, winner of British and U. S. golf titles in 1936, lost first match of comeback bid to Claire Tiernan, 5 and 3, in British championships.

FIVE YEARS AGO—Rex Mays led qualifiers for Indianapolis 500-mile automobile race with average of better than 119 miles per hour.

CRONIN BACK ON TOP, COONEY BATTING 8TH

By Associated Press

Joe Cronin, the 34-year-old manager of the Boston Red Sox, whose critics expressed doubt that he could continue playing shortstop this season, is the leading hitter in the major leagues at the moment.

His effective and defiant answer to encroaching years and aging muscles has been to bat .405 in 22 games. As of today he is the only regular in either major league with an average above .400. He whipped the Chicago White Sox Thursday with a grand slam home run and yesterday he accounted for three of his team's seven hits against Cleveland.

Cecil Travis, the Washington Senators' shortstop who set the pace previously, skidded from .459 to .398 during the week and dropped to second place in the select society of American League batters.

Arky Vaughan of Pittsburgh, National League batting champion in 1935, ascended to first place in the senior circuit with .392, a 19-point advance over last week when he was third.

The first 10 hitters in each league.

WHIPS JENKINS

Earns Shot At Two Titles

NEW YORK, May 17 (AP)—Another shot at Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins—this time with the title on the line—then a quick foray into the welterweight division where Fritzie Zivic is head man—that is the program of Bob Montgomery, Philadelphia buzz-saw and the Keystone State's newest candidate for national fistic recognition.

In Madison Square Garden last night Montgomery, born and bred a cotton picker in Sumter, S. C., took up where he left off against Jenkins some weeks back by handing the New York and California 133-pound king one of the worst lickings of his meteoric career—a 10-round affair in which the Jenkins title was not at stake.

Tuesday the Negro's handlers will go before the New York State Athletic Commission and formally challenge for the title. If agreeable, Promoter Mike Jacobs will stage the encore during July or August, either in the Polo grounds or Yankee Stadium.

JENKINS LOST ON ROUNDS

If he can repeat last night's triumph, Montgomery [illegible] will go after Zivic, who now [illegible] with plans for defending his [illegible] against Al (Bummy) Davis, earlier in the summer.

Jenkins came out of last night's melee with a bad cut on the nose, another on the right eye and a gash on the left ear. He lost seven of the 10 rounds and resembled more the champion of Sweetwater, Texas, (when Sammy Baugh is out of town) than the New York-California edition of the lightweight ruler of the world.

It was apparent from the third round that Jenkins sorely missed the motorcycle on which he did most of his training. He averaged a winning minute a round until the fourth, but from then on, with one brief exception, it was all Montgomery with room to spare.

The Texan charged in with a rush, but when his "Sunday punches" bounced harmlessly off Montgomery's jaw in the first three rounds he wilted and was just another guy named Joe.

LOOKED LIKE ARMSTRONG

The seventh found him almost out on his feet. The bell may have saved him from a knockout in the ninth when, backing away under a furious onslaught, he caught a short right on the chin just as the bell sounded.

There was no count, but many in the crowd of nearly 15,000 thought Montgomery would have ended things then and there had Jenkins struggled back to his feet and squared off.

Montgomery, fighting from a half-crouch, made the customers think of Henry Armstrong as he bobbed, weaved and bored. He is no terrific puncher, but he can take it and he has been well-schooled in ring generalship.

Promoter Mike Jacobs counted 14,638 paying gallerytoes who shelled out $41,703 for 30 minutes of pretty lusty fisticuffing.

Fading Ballplayers Revived by Trades

By Associated Press

Apparently the best tonic a baseball player can get is a new uniform. Time after time a trade has pepped up a player to performances he probably never would have reached at his old familiar stand.

This season has produced many examples—Billy Herman, who was hitting .124 for the Chicago Cubs and jumped to above .300 as soon as he joined the Brooklyn Dodgers; Steve Sundra, a mediocre pitcher for the New York Yankees who has won four and lost one for the Washington Senators.

The latest exhibit is Harry Gumbert, the righthander whom the New York Giants traded Wednesday to the St. Louis Cardinals.

In his last start with the Giants, he was knocked out of the box in the sixth inning by the Boston Braves, with the Redbirds yesterday he held these same Braves to six scattered hits, didn't walk a man, and shut them out, 4-0.

TERRY EXPECTED 20 WINS

Gumbert is 27 years old and a veteran of five years service with the Giants, for whom he never won less than 10 games a year and in 1939 captured 18. He unquestionably is a good pitcher, but Manager Bill Terry arrived at the conclusion last winter that Gumbert was no pace-maker.

"Gumbert could win 20 games this year," Terry told newspapermen, "if Hubbell or Schumacher could carry the mail for us. He has the stuff, but somebody else has to be the leader. You can't make him your ace."

While the Cardinals were winning, the Brooklyn Dodgers' seven-game victory string was snapped by the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-2, in 11 innings. Elbie Fletcher, who had singled one run across earlier, hit a homer off former Teammate Mace Brown in the 11th to decide it. This reduced the Dodgers' National League lead to 1½ games over the Cards.

The Giants took their second straight from the Chicago Cubs, 4-2, by punching out two runs in the eighth inning against Bill Lee. Mel Ott hit his eighth homer of the season in the second stanza.

The Cleveland Indians added to their margin in the American League by battering the Boston Red Sox, 9-3, with a 14-hit assault while young Jim Bagby buttoned up his old teammates with seven-hit pitching. The Cleveland offensive was led by Gerald (Gee) Walker with a two-run homer, a double and a single.

SHAKE UP YANKS

Joe McCarthy shook up his New York Yankee batting order, benched Rookies Phil Rizzuto and Gerry Priddy, and managed to break the Bombers' five-game losing streak at the expense of the Chicago White Sox, 6-5. Joe DiMaggio came out of his hitting slump with a homer in the third and a triple that set off the winning rally in the ninth. The latter blow was followed by a resounding three-bagger by Joe Gordon and a pinch single by Red Ruffing.

The Yanks had Gordon at second base and little Frank Crossetti at shortstop, and this seasoned pair pulled off two sparkling double plays. Another veteran, Johnny Murphy, pitched three scoreless innings in relief, after the Sox knocked out Marvin Breuer with five runs in the sixth.

A two-run homer by Rookie Pat Mullin in the sixth inning brought the Detroit Tigers a 5-3 decision over the Philadelphia Athletics, with Paul (Dizzy) Trout working four shutout frames in relief.

The Washington Senators edged out the St. Louis Browns, 7-6, as Elden Auker of the Brownies lasted the full nine innings, although giving up 18 hits. Mickey Vernon and Jim Bloodworth each made four. The modern record for hits off one pitcher in one game is 26.

BRAVES CALL ON YOUTH AS VETS FAIL

he has seen very little action to date this season. Manager Casey Stengel has been bringing him along slowly. Long hours have been spent on Javery's control and he has worked tirelessly as a batting practice pitcher.

Today he gets his chance. If Alva produces, he can move right into a regular job and take his turn every fourth or fifth day—it's up to him.

THREE FOR MILLER

Coming back to the game, the details of interest from a Boston standpoint are few. The Braves picked up but six singles for their afternoon's effort. Eddie Miller came up with three of them, Lloyd Waner a pair and Johnny Cooney the remaining hit.

Only in the third were they able to bunch two hits. Waner and Cooney singled with two gone but were left stranded by Rowell.

Three singles and a long fly gave the Cards a pair of runs in the first. In third, Terry Moore singled, went to third on a Mize hit and scored as Slaughter grounded out. In came Sullivan and the only other tally came in the eighth when Crespi doubled and scored on Jimmy Brown's single.

Donahue Choice In Hep Hurdles

PRINCETON, N. J., May 17 — The unpredictable Harvard track team was set to take third place in the Heptagonal Meet at Palmer Stadium this afternoon with the Penn Quakers favored to romp to their first title.

Capt. Don Donahue of the Cambridge trackmen should win easily both of the hurdles events and will probably set new records in both events.

Doug Pirnie, Harvard's greatest sprinter since Norm Cahners, has an outside chance to nip Bob Jackson of Whitman who wears the Orange and Black and Gene Koupra, the outstanding sprinter of Les Robertson's favored team.

HE'S THE CHAMP. And he's expected to add Heptagonal hurdles title at Princeton to his list is Don Donahue, Harvard Captain, shown clearing barrier. Don, I. C. 4-A champion, was favored today to win both high and low hurdles in seven-point meet, also to set records in both events.

B. C., B. U. Freshmen Tangle at Heights

The freshman nines of Boston College and Boston University complete their annual two game series this afternoon at Alumni Field.

Tommy Hazlett, a member of last year's Belmont high school state championship nine, was on the Boston College mound. He defeated the Terriers, 13 to 2, on April 12 at Nickerson Field.

Harvard Host To Tiger Nine

A repetition of last week's pitching duel between Harvard's soph hurling ace, Mort Waldstein and Danny Carmichael of Princeton, will feature the second game between the two teams at Soldiers Field this afternoon.

Princeton took a firm grip on third place in the league standings this week when the Tigers nosed out Columbia in a 10-inning battle.

At the present time the Cantabs are in fourth place and seem destined to drop a good deal lower.

STUMBLING B.C. FACES FRIARS IN PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 17—Providence College made its tenth start of the season here this afternoon against Boston College in the final game of the annual baseball series between the two schools.

The local Dominicans defeated the not so strong Boston College nine, 12-11, in the first game of the series played Wednesday at Newton, Mass. The conquest was Providence's fourth of the campaign against five defeats. The loss was Boston College's sixth of the season.

Amby Reynolds, slim senior who was used in a relief role at Newton on Wednesday, started on the Providence mound with Boston College calling on Dick Ferriter to end the Eagles' losing streak.

Terriers Row In Vail Regatta

MARIETTA, O., May 17 (AP)—The "navies" of seven colleges clashed here today for the third annual Dad Vail rowing regatta, with Rutgers favored to repeat its frosh-jayvee-varsity sweep of the last two years.

Opposing the Scarlet's bid for another triumph were Marietta, Boston University, Springfield (Mass.) College, American International, U. of Richmond and Rollins, with the local college's Pioneers tipped to furnish the upset, should one occur.

Boston University, A. I. C., Springfield and U. of Richmond crews are digging their oars into inland waters for the first time in the big regatta.

Park League Has Everything

The Boston Park League had a five game schedule that should go down in the books.

To get the session underway, John McDonough, of the Carter's Clothes outfit, pitched a perfect game—darkness stopping play at the end of six innings—against the Roslindale Town Club at Fallon Field. McDonough faced 18 batters and set each one down in order.

John 'Jabber' Jockowitz pitched a one-hit affair for the Dick Casey Club triumph over the Mayor Tobin Club at Marcella st. playgrounds, Roxbury, winning out 4 to 2. Meanwhile at South Boston Stadium, the Linehan Club was duplicating this score over the St. Catherine's Club of Charlestown.

The Navy Yard A. A. turned in a romp over the Hurley Club at Barry Park, Charlestown, 15 to 6, and the Artesani Club pinned the exact defeat on the Hellenics at the Fens Stadium.

Everything happens in baseball.
